Unveiling of Portraits of Grant, Sherman and Sheridan.

A MEMORABLE DAY AT WEST POINT

At the Tap of the Drum the Star-Spangled Drapery Fell.

A SPEECH BY GEN. HORACE PORTER

An Inspiring Scene That Moved General Sherman to Tears and Called Forth a Brief but Eloquent Speech.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 3.—West Point to-day was the scene of imposing ceremonies, which are destined to become memorable in its annals. The visit of the International American congress and the unveiling of the portraits of Grant, Sheridan and Sherman presented by George W. Childs were the principal features.

The special train containing the delegates to the International American congress arrived about 5 o'clock. Carriages awaited the delegates, and they were driven to the residence of Superintendent Wilson, where a distinguished company had assembled to welcome them. The booming of cannon announced the arrival at the post of the distinguished guests.

The secretary of war was the first one to alight from his carriage and step upon the veranda of the superintendent's quarters. He was warmly greeted by General Sherman, General Horace Porter, General Van Vleet, Mr. G. W. Childs, Wayne McVeigh and the academic and military staff of the post.

There was an immense crowd of spectators congregated under the trees on the edge of the plain. A battalion of cadets marched in review before the visitors. The machine-like precision of movement and soldierly appearance of the cadets elicited from the foreigners many complimentary remarks.

The battalion marched to Grant hall, the crowd quickly following, and in a twinkling the hall was jammed with people. A platform had been erected at the north end of the room, where the portraits of the three great generals, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, hung on the wall, each veiled in a United States flag.

The exercises were opened with a prayer by the chaplain of the post, Rev. Dr. Postlewaithe. The superintendent then raised his hand, a tap of the drum followed, the flags were removed from the pictures and they stood revealed in all their beauty. The battalion presented arms, the band played "Hail Columbia" and the audience sprang to their feet and cheered.

GENERAL PORTER'S SPEECH.

General Horace Porter was then introduced and made the presentation address, as follows:

It has been said that the only representatives of royalty recognized in this land are our merchant princes. We are indebted for the occasion which brings us together to-day to the princely act of a public spirited and patriotic citizen who has conferred upon the Military academy souvenirs of her three most distinguished graduates whose historic features have been transferred to canvas by the limner's art. One dwelling in our midst, two dwelling in our memories. One bearing the laurel upon a living brow; two wearing the laurel intertwined with the cypress. The history of their lives is the most brilliant chapter in the history of their country. It savors more of romance than reality; it is more like a fabled tale of ancient days than the story of American soldiers of the Nineteenth century.

Most of the conspicuous characters in history have risen to prominence by gradual steps, but the senior of the triumvirate, whose features are recalled to us to-day, came before the people with a sudden bound. Almost the first sight caught of him was in the blaze of his camp-fires and the flashes of his guns those weary days and nights in front of Donelson. From that time until the closing triumph at Appomattox the great central figure of the war was Ulysses S. Grant. As light and shade produce the most attractive effects in a picture, so the singular contrasts, the strange vicissitudes of his eventful life surround him with an interest which attaches to few characters in history. His rise from an obscure lieutenant to the command of the veteran armies of the great republic; his transition from a frontier post of the untrodden West to the executive mansion of the nation, his sitting at one time in a little store at Galena, not even known to the congressman from his district; at another time striding through the palaces of the Old World, with the descendants of a line of kings rising and standing uncovered in his presence. These are some of the features of his marvellous career, which appeal to the imagination, excite men's wonder and fascinate all who make a study of his life.

He was created for great emergencies. It was the very magnitude of the task which called forth the powers which mastered it. In ordinary matters he was an ordinary man; in momentous affairs he towered as a giant. When performing the routine duties of a company post there was no act to make him conspicuous above his fellow officers; but when he wielded corps and armies the great qualities of the commander flashed forth, and his master strokes of genius stamped him as the foremost soldier of his age. When he hauled wood from his little farm and sold it in St. Louis, his financiering was hardly equal to that of the small farmers about him, but when a message was to be sent by a president to congress that would puncture the fallacies of the inflationists and throttle by a veto the attempt of unwise legislators to cripple the finances of the nation, a state paper was produced which has ever since commanded the wonder and admiration of every believer in a sound currency. He was made for great things, not for little. He could collect fifteen millions from Great Britain in settlement of the Alabama claims; he could not protect his own personal savings from the miscreants who robbed him in Wall street.

If there is one word which describes better than any other the predominating characteristics of his nature, that word is loyalty. He was loyal to his friends, loyal to his family, loyal to his country and loyal to his God. This trait naturally produced a reciprocal effect upon those who were brought into relations with him and was one of the chief reasons why men became so loyally attached to him. Many a public man has had troops of adherents who clung to him only for the patronage dispensed at his hands, or, being dazzled by his power, became blind partisans in a cause he represented, but perhaps no other man than General Grant ever had so many personal friends who loved him for his own sake, whose affection only strengthened with time, whose attachment never varied in its devotion, whether he was general or president or simply private citizen.

Even the valor of his marshal deeds was surpassed by the superb heroism he displayed when fell disease attacked him, when the hand which had seized the surrendered swords of countless thousands was no longer able to return the pressure of a comrade's grasp when he met in death the first enemy to whom he ever surrendered. But with him death brought eternal rest, and he was permitted to enjoy what he had pleaded for in behalf of others, for the Lord had let him have peace.

Turn we now to Grant's immediate successor in the office of general-in-chief, his illustrious lieutenant with whom he divided a field of military operations which covered half a continent, the skillful strategist, the brilliant writer, the commander whose orders spoke with the true bluntness of the soldier who fought from valley's depth to mountain height, who marched from inland rivers to the sea—William T. Sherman.

He has shown himself possessed of the highest characteristics of the soldier. Bold in conception, self-reliant, demonstrating by his acts that "much danger makes great hearts most resolute," prompt in decision, unshrinking under grave responsibilities, fertile in resources, quick to adapt the means at hand to accomplishment of an end, possessing an intuitive knowledge of topography, combining the restlessness of a Hotspur with the patience of a Fabius, unswerving in patriotism, of unimpeachable personal character, of a physical constitution which enabled him to undergo every hardship incident to an active campaign, it is no wonder that he has filled so large a measure of military greatness, that he stands in the front rank of the world's great captains.

No name connected with the army inspires more genuine enthusiasm, appeals more to our sentiments or more excites our fancy than that of the wizard of the battlefield, Philip H. Sheridan. The personification of chivalry, the incarnation of battle; cheering, threatening, inciting, beseeching, inspiring all men by his acts, he roused his troops to deeds of individual heroism unparalleled in the history of modern warfare, and his unconquerable columns rushed to victory with all the confidence of Cæsar's Tenth Legion. Generous of his life, gifted with the ingenuity of a Hannibal, the dash of a Murat, the courage of a Ney, the magnetism of his presence transformed routed squadrons with charging columns and snatched victory from defeat. He preferred shot and shell to flags of truce; he would rather lead forlorn hopes than follow in the wake of charges.

His standard rose above all others on the field; wherever blows fell thickest his crest was in their midst despite the daring valor of the defense; opposing ranks went down before the fierceness of his onsets never to rise again; he paused not till the fold of his banners waved above the strongholds he had wrested from the foe. While his achievements in actual battle eclipse by their brilliancy the strategy and grand tactics employed in his campaigns, yet the skill and boldness exhibited in moving large bodies of men into position, entitle him, perhaps, to as much credit as the marvellous qualities he displayed in the face of the enemy.

Brave Sheridan! Methinks I see your silent clay again quickened into life, once more riding Rienzi through a fire of hell, leaping opposing earthworks at a single bound, and leaving nothing of those who barred your way except the fragments scattered in your path.

Matchless leader! Harbinger of victory, we salute you!

As long as courage is talked of or heroic deeds are honored there will remain green in the hearts of men the talismanic name of Sheridan.

Nearly every great war has given birth to one great general; no other war than our own has produced three such eminent commanders. In their portraits future graduates will gaze upon the features of three soldiers who were heroes, comrades, friends. As iron is welded in the heat of the forge, so was their friendship welded in the heat of battles. With hearts untouched by jealousy, with souls too great for rivalry, they saved us from the spectacle presented by a Marius and a Sulla, a Cæsar and a Pompey, Charles the First and a Cromwell. They placed above all personal ends the safety of the state, and like the men in the Roman phalanx of old, stood shoulder to shoulder and linked their shields against a common foe.

In this life little is learned from precept, something from experience, much from example. It is said that for 300 years after Thermopylæ every school child in Greece was required each day to repeat from memory the names of the 300 immortal heroes who fell in the defense of that pass. It would be in itself a liberal education to the future defenders of the republic who bear diplomas from this historic spot, where patriotism early found a stronghold and treason's plots were baffled, if they could daily utter the names and contemplate the exalted characters of the trio whose faces will henceforth look down upon them from the artist's canvas. As we gaze upon the features of each one of them we may fittingly apply the words of Milton:

> "Thither shall all the valiant youth resort,
> And from his memory inflame their breasts
> To matchless valor."

The imperishable scroll on which the record of their deeds is written has been securely lodged in the highest niche of Fame's temple. No one can pluck a single laurel from their brow; no man can lessen the measure of their renown.

It is an auspicious circumstance which permits these ceremonies to take place before so distinguished and influential a body as that of the International American congress. The presence of its delegates upon this post dedicated to war is an augury that states may be saved without the sword; that henceforth our differences in the New World may be settled without resorting to the "last argument of kings," and that congresses, bearing in their hands the olive branch, will labor to avoid war, which wastes a nation's substance; to foster commerce, which is a nation's life, and to preserve that peace and good will which should everywhere prevail amongst men.

Three years ago there was selected as president of your board of visitors a citizen of Philadelphia, whose heart is as large as his purse and whose generosity dwells in a land which knows no frontiers—Mr. George W. Childs. His thoughtfulness prompted his liberality to procure for the academy these gifts which are to grace its walls.

The likeness of General Grant was executed by Mrs. Darragh, of Philadelphia. It was made from a photograph taken by Gutekunst, of that city, in 1865, which Mrs. Grant and a number of the general's friends considered the best of the many pictures taken of him just after the war. Representing him as he appeared nearly thirty years ago, his features do not seem so familiar to those who saw him only in later years. Soon after this portrait had been placed upon the walls of what is now known as Grant hall, Mr. Childs requested General Sherman and General Sheridan to permit him to have their likenesses prepared in order that he might present them to the Military academy and have them hung beside the portrait of the illustrious chieftain who had passed from earth. Mrs. Darragh was commissioned to execute both of these portraits. In the preparation of General Sherman's picture her chief guide was the famous portrait of him painted by Huntington, fifteen years ago, and her aim was to represent the general as of that period. General Sheridan sat for his portrait, and the same artist painted it from life, representing the general as he appeared but a short time before his lamented death.

It now becomes my agreeable duty, in the name of Mr. Childs, to present to you, as superintendent of the Military academy, the portraits of three of her sons who have borne the highest military titles, as an offering from an untitled citizen, who, in his living, has verified the adage that the post of honor is the private station.

His good works have made him honored in other lands, as well as this, where his name is held in grateful recollection by the many who have been the recipients of his practical philanthropy, and not only the graduates of West Point, but the people at large, will, I am sure, make grateful acknowledgment of the means he has taken, in these testimonials, to manifest his appreciation of the Military Academy and the three distinguished sons she trained to battle for the integrity of our common country.

Superintendent Wilson, in a short address accepted the portraits, and the secretary of war made a few remarks.

A SPEECH BY SHERMAN.

General Sherman who, during all these ceremonies, had sat on the platform with folded hands and tear-dimmed and downcast eyes, in response to many calls was next introduced. As the general stepped forth the assemblage broke forth into wild cheering.

The old warrior's remarks were few, but every word uttered was eagerly caught by his hearers. He said it was by one of those strange appointed accidents of life that he was permitted to be the sole survivor of what General Porter had termed the "Great trio of Generals," of the late war. "I am older than Grant or Sheridan," he said. "No three men ever lived on this earth so different from each other as the three men's portraits you are looking at. They were different in all respects, save one, and that was in their devotion to their country. Of whatever talents they possessed they were joined together in the true-hearted service of their country."

His remarks were mainly addressed to the cadets, advising them to love and serve their country, and obey the laws and those in authority over them. By the country, he said he meant the whole country, and no political party.

This evening a reception was held at the quarters of Colonel Wilson, superintendent of West Point, in honor of the international delegates.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF ARIZONA.

Formal Charges Made Against His Administration of the Office.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A Washington special says: For some time past vigorous efforts have been made to procure the removal of Chief Justice Wright, of Arizona, but no one could be found ready to put a complaint against him into proper shape. Formal charges, however, duly signed and sworn to, have at last reached Washington, and an investigation has been ordered.

The principal accusation is that the chief justice overrode the law of the territory in several cases in the way of imposing the penalty of banishment upon culprits, in place of the punishment prescribed in the statutes. It is thought that this practice has had a wholesome influence upon the general morals of the community by ridding it of bad characters, whose offenses are only inadequately provided for in the laws, but it is argued that a magistrate of the rank of the chief justice is appointed to expound, and not to amend the system of jurisprudence.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

First Awards for Harvesting Machinery Made to a Prominent American Firm.

HOOSIC FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 3.—It has just been officially announced that the Walter A. Wood machines have received the following awards at the Paris exposition: Grand prize on general exhibit only object of art, highest award on harvester and binder, gold medal on reaper and gold medal on mower. No other American inventor or manufacturer of harvesting machines has ever received for an exhibit at any world's fair so many honors and medals as have been awarded to Walter A. Wood at the great Paris exposition.

Disastrous Peat Fires.

ALBERT LEA, Minn., Oct. 3.—A great peat fire is burning near Geneva, this county. It is estimated that 5000 acres of land have been burned over and 6000 tons of hay burned. Over 170 loads in stacks owned by L. I. Bell, were burned Tuesday, and every farmer loses more or less. There is no means of saving the hay, as the fire is in the peat under the surface, and it is impossible to drive a team near it. Experts place the value of the despoiled land at $100,000 and the damage by the burning of hay at $30,000.

[illegible] LIVES LOST.

An Awful Disaster Upon a Southern River.

A STEAMER BLOWN TO PIECES

Two Vessels Collide and Sink in the Atlantic Ocean,

WITH FEARFUL LOSS OF LIFE

A British War Vessel Wrecked in the Recent Hurricane Off the West Indies, Entailing Death and Suffering.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 3.—The steamer Corona, of the Ouachita Consolidated Line, left here last evening for the Ouachita river, with a full cargo of freight and a good list of passengers. She exploded her boilers at False river, nearly opposite Port Hudson, at 11:45 this morning, causing the loss of the steamer, and about forty lives.

The Anchor line steamer City of St. Louis, Captain James O'Neil, was near, and with its crew and boats saved many lives. The surviving passengers and crew were taken on board by Captain O'Neil and kindly cared for.

Following is the list of the lost and saved as far as known:

Crew lost—J. W. Blanks, captain; J. V. Jordan, first clerk; Charles C. Ellis, second clerk; [illegible] Hanna, third clerk; Fred Denkle, barkeeper; [illegible] Vernon, barkeeper; Pat Ryan, steward; [illegible] Curtis, fireman; Tom Shook, engineer; Henry Davis, deck hand; Tom Cook, sailman; Billy Young, second mate; Sam Steel, Texas boy; both captains of the deck watch, and fifteen roustabouts, names unknown.

Passengers lost: Dr. Atwell, corn doctor; four negro musicians; Mrs. Scott, of Smithland, [illegible] Mr. Davis, a stockman of Texas; Mr. Koenig[illegible] Mrs. Huff, of Opelousas; Mrs. Kaufman's nurse and oldest child.

Mrs. Tom Hough, of Opelousas; Mr. Wilson, of Red River landing.

Passengers saved: Mrs. Henry Blanks and two children, Mrs. Wann, Mrs. Robert Robertson, Mrs. Kaufman and children, Captain B. G. Cornwell, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. J. J. Meredith, L. F. Mason, Mr. Baughman, Mr. Comstock, of Donaldsonville; John Carr, of Harrisonburg.

The Corona was on her first trip of the season and had but recently come out of dry dock, where she had received repairs to the extent of nearly $12,000.

She was built at Wheeling, W. Va., by Sweeney Brothers, of that city, about seven years ago, and had a carrying capacity of about 2500 bales of cotton. At the time of the accident she was valued at $20,000.

Ten of the saved are wounded, but not dangerously.

Mrs. Robertson says that when the Corona arrived opposite False river landing, about sixteen miles below Bayou Sara, one of the boilers exploded, tearing the boat to pieces, when she sank in deep water in a few seconds. Mrs. Robertson [illegible] that she was wedged in the ladies' cabin [illegible] some of the debris lying across her lower limbs, but was suddenly released and found herself floating in the river. She sank twice, but [illegible] was picked up and escaped with only a few painful bruises on her limbs.

L. C. Rollings, the pilot, says that he was asleep at the time of the explosion, and does not know how it occurred.

Hon. L. F. Mason, secretary of state, who was a passenger on the Corona, states that he escaped with a life preserver, and assisted in saving Mrs. Robertson and another lady. There was very little time for preparation for escape, as the boat went down like lead a few seconds after the explosion occurred.

No one seems to be able to give any explanation as to the cause of the disaster.

Captain T. E. Sweeney, one of the officers of the line, who assumed command on the death of Captain Blank, says that the explosion was not due to too high a pressure of steam. He had just had occasion to examine the gauge, and is sure that there was not a pressure of more than 125 pounds. The boat had a moderate cargo. She was in the middle of the river, just below the landing at [illegible]broth, and had just whistled to pass the City of St. Louis, fortunately coming down at the time.

The explosion had a downward tendency, and blew out the bottom of the boat, causing her to sink immediately. She was torn in two, the [illegible] portion floating down stream, and bearing a number of the saved.

Captain Sweeney says that the boat would undoubtedly have burned, had she not gone down immediately. None of the papers, books or other valuables were saved.

The City of St. Louis, which was about 500 yards above, at once put out her boats, and she did good work in saving lives. She stayed there several hours, rendering all the assistance possible and taking on board the rescued passengers and crew. When nothing more could be done she came on down to Baton Rouge, where doctors were summoned and all possible done for the injured.

The only dead body recovered was that of Fred Overman, second barkeeper.

A COLLISION ON THE HIGH SEAS.

Two Vessels Sunk, and a Large Number of Persons Drowned.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—A special cable to [illegible] from St. Pierre, Miquelon, says: The trans-Atlantic Geographic, of the Rossiere line, Captain Paussen commanding, bound from Montreal to Southampton with cattle, sheep and a cargo of general merchandise, which left Sydney Tuesday, collided with the Nova Scotia vessel, Minnie Swift, forty miles off St. Pierre yesterday morning. The Minnie Swift sank within two minutes, drowning, as nearly as can be ascertained, [illegible] women, three children and ten men. RETURN OF THE RUSH.

She Touches at Port Townsend, En Route to Seattle.

HER RECORD OF SEIZURES, ETC

A Sealing Boat Picked Up Containing Six Indians—Ten Days Adrift and Nearly Dead When Rescued.

PORT TOWNSEND Oct 3.—The United States steamer Rush arrived from Sitka to-day. The commander, D G Shepherd, reports that out of a fleet of thirty five vessels in Behring sea the Rush intercepted twenty one and seized six five of which were British schooners from Victoria and one an American Indian schooner of this port. All of the seized vessels were ordered to Sitka. Each British vessel was placed in charge of one seaman all of which vessels, notwithstanding the protests of the officer in charge proceeded to Victoria, and in some instances even killed seals in Behring sea while bound south.

The American schooner without a prize crew came to this port and surrendered to the customs officials. When the Rush arrived at Sitka September 12, and learned of the supposed loss of the schooner Alpha near Yukitut, she proceeded to that place and found the owners captain and crew from the wrecked Alpha on a small island preparing to winter, all of them were returned to Sitka.

While cruising in Behring sea, a sealing boat belonging to the British schooner Beatrice of Victoria was picked up containing six Indians. They had been adrift for ten days with very little food and water, and were so emaciated that they were unable to walk. They were provided for and landed at Barclay sound, B. C.

The Rush will leave for Seattle to-morrow.

NEWS FROM THE ARCTIC.

Operations of the Steamer Bear Among the Whaling Fleet

ASTORIA, Oct. 3.—The following letter being the latest from the revenue cutter Bear will appear in to-morrow's Astorian. It gives considerable interesting news not published before.

U S REVENUE STEAMER BEAR, }
OUNALASKA Alaska Sept 7 1889 }

Left San Francisco June 10 arrived at Ounalaska the 22d after a stormy passage. Found the Russian man of war Crysuer and the United States steamers Thetis and Rush in port. Also the disabled whaling bark Gagoda, in distress, having been stove by ice off Cape Navirne, Siberia.

The schooner Hamilton, which left San Francisco in March for Ounalaska with a crew for the sealing schooner Angel Dolly and on a whaling voyage has not been heard from. Many believe her to have gone down with all hands near the Aleutian islands, in the Pacific as quantities of wreckage have been found by natives on the south side of these islands. The hunting schooner Otter is also given up as lost.

At Ounalaska we coaled ship, filled the tanks with [illegible] water [illegible] repaired the bark Gagoda, and on the 1st of July proceeded to sea with the Gagoda in tow. She went to San Francisco, casting off from the ship the same day.

We shaped our course for the Pribyloff islands. We sighted St. George on the 2d the St Lawrence on the 5th and anchored in Port Clarence on the 6th. We found most of the steam whalers in port, but no news of the Hamilton. From these vessels news was obtained of the loss of the Little Ohio on Point Hope, October 3, 1888, and of the loss of the Big Ohio, June 1st, off the Nounivak islands.

We steamed through Behring straits June 9, and anchored off Point Hope Tigara on the 11th. Found most of the sailing vessels in the ice unable to get further north. We remained near Point Hope until the 18th shifting anchorage several times to keep clear of heavy drift ice.

On the 18th we moved up to Cape Dyre watered ship, and proceeded north, stopping to communicate with the natives at Cape Lisbourne, Cape Sabine, Cape Beaufort, Point Lay, Icy cape, and Wainwright inlet.

On the 24th we anchored off Cape Smythe ten miles from Point Barrow, and commenced to send lumber and provisions on shore for the Point Barrow station.

On the 26th the Thetis arrived, sending her steam launch and men with an officer in charge to assist us. The whaling fleet also sent men and boats. Work was begun at once under the direction of Captain Healy, assisted by Lieutenant Buhner who had charge of the carpenters and men on shore. The Thetis left for the eastward August 7.

From the 27th of July to the 16th of August we remained in the vicinity of Point Barrow. On the 10th we had a strong southwest wind. All the vessels anchored off Cape Smythe, including the Bear, got under way and steamed to the eastward of Point Barrow. The wind increased to a gale, which drove the ice pack on shore, piling it up in front of the station thirty feet high. The whalers feared a repetition of last year's gale which proved so disastrous to so many of the fleet. The ice lodged on the point, and on the 13th swung around to the eastward completely shutting the fleet in, and making it impossible for any to get out. On the 13th the whaling bark Tamerlane struck a ground cake of ice, starting a small leak.

On the 14th the bark J A Howland, in working through the ice disabled her rudder. The Bear went to her assistance and towed her safely to anchorage. The rudder was unshipped and placed on deck.

On the 15th the steamers Balaena and Belvidere returned from the eastward, after several days of hard steaming through the ice. The steamers succeeded in getting as far east as Return reef, this place Franklin was stopped and attempted to return the way he came. They reported ice down at that place also on Tangent thirty miles east of Point Barrow. Return reef is about 200 miles east of Point Barrow. When last seen the other steam whalers and the Thetis were working their way out towards Point Barrow. During our stay at Point Barrow the whaling barks Northern Light Alert Barker and Sea Breeze were towed to safe anchorage being in danger of heavy drift ice. For three days it really looked as though we were in for the winter. Ice piled up on two sides of us, with land on the other two.

On the 16th the wind hauled to the east, driving the ice for a short distance off shore. We got under way, steamed around Point Barrow, and anchored off Cape Smythe. The whalers said we could not get through but we did, taking on board Lieutenant Bubner, who remained behind in charge of the carpenters and men left to complete the house.

This house is a model of its kind and reflects great credit on its designers. It is 80x48 feet, having sides, floor and roof three boards in thickness interlined with felting. Its only fault is in size. It is too small much of the room being taken up by the necessary amount of provisions to be kept on hand. The house at present has seventy-four sleeping berths, and on a pinch could accommodate 100 men with sleeping room and provisions for nine months. When it becomes necessary to use this house as a place of refuge it will be found complete in details.

The evening of the 16th we steamed to the southward with a strong north wind, and found ice pack down on Sea Horse islands to Point Belcher. After hard steaming we succeeded in steaming through a lead into clear water.

On the 17th we spoke the whaling bark James Allen working to the westward. She had left the fleet before the blow on the 16th.

The 18th, 60 miles north of Point Hope, we spoke the schooner Nicoline, forty seven days out from San Francisco. We anchored off Point Hope that evening.

On the 19th we watered ship at Cape Kotzebue sound. We lay hove to in a southeast gale on the 21st. On the 22d we anchored off Cape Blossom.

We found very few natives here, nearly all having gone home. This is a great rendezvous and trade market.

We left here on the 23d and all the way to the straits had heavy winds and rough seas. Passed through Behring straits on the 26th. Passed Diomend King Sledge islands the same day and anchored off St. Michael. Here we learned that the Alaska Commercial Company's steamer Arctic has gone ashore in a gale of wind, losing nearly all her cargo, including 300 bags of flour intended for the miners and missionaries up the Yukon river. The loss to the company will be great though nothing compared to the loss in provisions to the miners and missionaries, as their winter supplies were on this steamer. The company will forward stores on a steamer now plying on the river, as soon as possible. These are stern wheel boats. The Arctic was finally floated and after towing her back to St Michael we proceeded south on the 28th.

On the 30th we encountered a strong northwest gale, the barometer dropping to 28.92, the lowest on the cruise. This continued slightly abated till we reached Ounalaska, on the 2d of September. We found in port the Rush also the bark J D Peters, discharging coal for the government. The Rush had seized six sealing schooners and sent them to Sitka. We are all doing nicely now. We will probably go to sea next week, for a cruise in Behring sea.

THE IRRIGATION COMMITTEE.

Senator Stewart Gives Some Details of the Work Accomplished.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—Senator William M Stewart, of Nevada, arrived here this morning. The senate committee on irrigation, of which he is chairman, has closed its investigations, and its members have gone to their respective homes.

In an interview to-day, Senator Stewart stated that the committee had been on the road fifty days and had taken testimony from nearly 400 witnesses, distributed through the following states and territories: Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska. The principal irrigation systems in the United States had been visited and careful observations made of the development and practical results of their various ditches and irrigating canals. The great artesian wells of the Northwest—some of them 2000 feet deep—have been examined and their workings noted. The committee also examined a number of sites for the storage of water, great natural basins which need but little effort to constitute them gigantic reservoirs capable of irrigating millions of acres of land. A number of lakes were also examined. Altogether the committee has made a journey of some 12,000 miles, and has gathered a vast amount of useful information upon all the phases of the irrigation problem.

Upon one point it has found entire concurrence among the farmers and fruit growers who have resorted to irrigation, and that is that the crops are rendered not only more certain, but much more abundant by getting water just when they need it, rather than when the accident of rainfall supplies it. Of the many estimates adduced as to the advantage afforded in this respect, the lowest is that by irrigation the crop is twice as abundant as when dependent on the rainfall alone. Other estimates grade the crop produced by irrigation all the way from three up to five fold that which is dependent on rainfall.

The results of the investigation will be embodied in a report to be made to the senate during the approaching session of congress. Senator Stewart speaks with enthusiasm of the committee's work.

THE FORTY MILE DIGGINGS.

A Returned Prospector Says There Is No Danger of Starvation.

SAN FRANCISCO Oct 3.—All fears as to the safety of the miners on the Yukon river Alaska have been set at rest by J G Davis who has just returned from the diggings at Forty Mile creek. Davis says "there were about eighty men at Forty Mile creek and twenty-eight at Stewart river a branch of the Yukon about 120 miles above the creek. When we left the men had no sugar tobacco or tea but there was plenty of flour bacon white beans and dried fruit. The bacon was not very good but it sold for [illegible] cents a pound. Most of the dried fruit was spoiled. There was butter enough to last for five years. I want it said that the men are not suffering for want of food, and their friends need have no fear for them on that account. There is plenty of food but even if it gives out, which is not probable, the men can live easily by their rifles. We lived on our rifles for sixty days during our hunt for copper. There is plenty of moose caribou, mountain sheep and goats. The men are mostly Americans. They live in cabins built of hewn logs. The Forty Mile diggings are about 600 miles from the coast and [illegible] miles from Juneau. The diggings do not pay very well: the men are making only wages now, though some have been quite successful. The Alaska company has three steamers—the Yukon, the Explorer and the Newrack. One went up this year—the Newracket I think—and reached the diggings about the latter part of July or early in August. The men from the diggings can go down stream if they wish to St Michael's and wait there for the steamer."

SEATTLE.

With One Exception the Entire Republican Ticket is Elected

SEATTLE Wn Oct 3—The count of the eight Seattle precincts was finished to-night. The first precinct with over 800 votes was last to complete the canvass. This precinct which on the night of election threatened to go two to one Democratic gave Wilson 4[illegible] and Griffitts [illegible] a republican majority of [illegible]7. Wilson carries the city by 706 majority and Ferry by [illegible].

There are yet eight small precincts in the county to be heard from. Those already reported including the city give Wilson 4092 and Griffitts 3179 a republican majority of [illegible]13. Ferry received [illegible] and Semple 3249 a majority for Ferry of [illegible]42. Precincts yet unreported in 1888 gave Allen 237 and Voorhees 1[illegible] a majority for Allen of 66. The republican majority of 1887 can be confidently counted on, and Wilson's majority in the county will therefore be in round numbers 1000 and Ferry's 8[illegible]. These are the lowest estimates and the chances are that Wilson's majority will be nearer 1100.

Stratton for superior judge, is almost certainly defeated. Lichtenberg his opponent now has 226 majority and the republican majority in the remaining precincts can hardly overcome this.

The vote for Olympia in the county will be nearly 6000 with Ellensburgh about 1200 and North Yakima [illegible]50.

No word has been received from Snohomish county the wires being still down.

STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

A Revised Course of Study Adopted by the Regents—An Encouraging Outlook

SALEM Or Oct 3.—Governor Pennoyer Secretary McBride and Superintendent McElroy, returned yesterday from Corvallis, where they attended a meeting of the board of regents of the State Agricultural College. A revised course of study was adopted in which special attention is to be given to practical and scientific agriculture and the mechanic arts. The board examined the new buildings and found the brick building of the department of mechanical engineering and the building to be used as a boarding hall and dormitory nearly completed.

There is an encouraging increase in the number of students, every part of the state being represented and the outlook for a prosperous and successful agricultural college under state management, is exceedingly favorable.

The advanced course of study embraces five branches—agricultural scientific, household economy, ladies' literary and mechanical arts.

THE FUR TRADE.

A Remarkable Advance in Prices in Recent Years

VICTORIA B C Sept 3. The season's shipping of furs by the Hudson Bay Company, this city, is now ended, the last lot being sent to London via the Canadian Pacific to-day. A quarter of a million dollars will not be a high estimate of the value of the furs shipped during the season. Seals have been very plentiful and despite the vigilance of the United States revenue cutter in Behring sea the industry this year will have proved more profitable than last.

The chief furrier here, a man of thirty five years experience, believes Marten will be the fashion this year. Bear and beaver will more than hold the r own as at the price now paid for a single marten five or six could be bought a few years ago. A bearskin that in 1886 sold for six dollars, now readily sells at twenty five dollars while beaver have increased in value in even greater proportions.

TWO MAJORITY ON JOINT BALLOT

Toole, Democrat, Is Probably Elected Governor—A Wild Celebration at Pierre Over the Capital Question.

The republicans now estimate their majority for governor at 100, while the democrats claim Toole's election by 400. The republicans now claim only three majority on joint ballot in the legislature while the democrats claim nine. Silver Bow county returns, which will probably be complete before morning, will take the legislature out of doubt, and probably also the governor.

Prohibition is carried by at least 5000. The republican state ticket is elected by 20 000.

ST PAUL, Oct. 3.—A special to the Pioneer-Press from Pierre S. D says. The scene here to-night over the election of Pierre as the capital bids fair to outrival last night. The town seems to have gone mad. No attempt is being made by the authorities to preserve order. A couple of bands of Cheyenne Indians are on the spot and add to the excitement. Although no disastrous accident occured last night it is feared things will not be so well to-night. No business of any kind was done here to-day, people giving themselves up to celebrating and watching for more election news.

AN ADVENTUROUS CAREER.

Death of a "Forty-Niner" in Poverty, Who Was Once Worth $5 000,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct 3.—After a stormy career, James S Clark, of Tombstone, Ariz. died here to-day almost in abject poverty. He was a "Forty-niner" in the gold fever days of California and in later years a mining adventurer. He wandered over many of the Western territories, and into Mexico and even penetrated the sub-arctic regions of British America.

During the civil war he was a cotton speculator. He lived like a prince, and his wealth at one time was estimated at $5,000,000.

After the war Clark took to mine speculating again and lost the greater part of his fortune in unlucky speculations and the rest in prodigal living.

Three years ago he came to Washington to prosecute a claim against the government for $100 000 for cotton seized in Memphis and sold by the officers of the Union army. The claim has been favorably reported by both houses of congress, but not contemporaneously. Clark still preserved a sanguine spirit, although he had been living almost on charity while he kept up the discouraging fight.

The Deep-Harbor Convention.

TOPEKA, Kans., Oct 3.—When the deep-harbor convention met to-day the report of the committee on resolutions was received. Two reports were submitted, a majority and minority. The former favored the establishment by congress of a deep water harbor on the northwest coast of the Gulf of Mexico. The minority report asked for the construction of three deep harbors—one on the Texas coast, one on the Louisiana coast and another at some place to be determined upon hereafter. The majority report was finally adopted.

The majority report states that it is the sense of the convention that it is the duty of congress to appropriate permanently and for immediate use whatever amount is necessary to secure a deep water port on the northwest coast of the Gulf of Mexico west of the ninety third degree, west longitude, capable of admitting the largest vessels, and at which the best and most accessible harbor can be secured and maintained in the shortest possible time and at the least cost. The convention adjourned sine die.

EYE OPENERS.

The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio.
Gentlemen—For the information of yourselves and intending purchasers of a Register, I will relate my experience in purchasing one.

To begin with, I first tried the Bensinger or Chicago register. I did not make a direct purchase of it, as it was a new thing, and I was a little afraid of it working correctly, although great statements were made of its superiority over the National. Well, I tried it, but not long, for I soon found that it did not work right, besides it could easily be beaten, therefore, was no good to me.

I set your register up myself without any trouble, and it is working to my entire satisfaction. I can heartily endorse it as far superior in its operation and correctness. Yours truly, (Signed) ALEX MEISTER, Seattle, W.T.
September 12th 1889.

The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio
Gentlemen—We purchased one of your No. 2 nickel registers, and the automatic self adding register.
Yours has worked to our entire satisfaction from the first day's use.
The Bensinger we sent back three days after we received it!
We cheerfully recommend the National as being far superior, and all you claim it, a perfect cash register. Very truly yours, (Signed) ROSE & CO, Tacoma, W.T.
September 21, 1889.

Chicago, Ill, September [illegible]
The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio.
Gentlemen—I want to say to you that I have tried both the National Cash Register and the Bensinger Self-Adding Cash Register in my bar, No 18 Canal street. I consider the National infinitely superior to the Bensinger. I have thrown out the Bensinger machine, and would not have it at any price. Yours truly, OTTO [illegible]

Minneapolis Minn., [illegible]
I used one of the Bensinger Registers about two weeks. I found that I could not rely upon it at all, and could not make my employees responsible for the money registered because it did not register correctly. This I know from experience. I got rid of it by myself. I paid forty-five dollars to get them to take it back and release me from the contract and then paid you one hundred and seventy five dollars for your register which gives me entire satisfaction. I have used it about three weeks and find it accurate, and a system which I could not do without.
FRANK MERCIER [illegible]

The foregoing tells its own story. Fine plausible talk and great promises induces the trial, but when it comes to business, the combination of "shoe leather and pot metal" can not fill the bill. Anybody can beat the Bensinger Cash Register—they beat themselves.

CASH TALKS.

The Blowhard Representative of the Bensinger Cash Adder "Takes" [illegible] Wind is One Thing and Cold Cash Quite Another Commodity.

(THE DENVER ROAD)

The following bluff appeared in a recent issue of the Star, a little [illegible] gun publication who gives their matter the most prominent space on their [illegible]. It reads as follows

"Reporter—What about the claim of Cool & High that your register (Bensinger) does not do accurate work?

"Mr Smith—You go to those fellows and stump them to put up [illegible] against an equal amount which I will give you, that they cannot find one of our machines that has failed in the strictest accuracy, except, of course, in the one which they have in their office, and which they have so tampered with that it scarcely recognizable as a cash register."

On Tuesday morning Mr. High took $2,000 in currency and visited Mr. Smith, [illegible] $1,000 to take up the above proposition, and $1,000 more to wager that he (Smith) would lose his bet. Mr. Smith hawed and hemmed around, and pleaded time to examine his machines. The money was not covered, has not yet been covered and will be. Messrs Coo & High are reputable business men, and make no bluffs. Their business with them, and they are in the field with the only accurate [illegible] ever made, and are fighting the Bensinger as a cheap infringement. [illegible] make a bluff at Coo & High, cold cash must accompany their bluff, or [illegible]. Messrs C & H go Mr. Smith one better by openly making an offer [illegible] to the man who can show them a Bensinger Improved machine that [illegible] cate any man in five minutes to "beat," and in the same proposition [illegible] goes to the man who can invent a scheme to 'beat' the Improved [illegible] Register without either an ax or leaving the money out of the register [illegible].

"But that Bensinger machine you have in your office is [illegible]" Smith, excitedly, as he still refused to cover Mr High's $2000. [illegible] High, coolly, "that may be, but if it is we don't know it, and [illegible] says I can take that sample machine which you have there on your [illegible] same defects and inaccuracies that appear in the Bensinger machine [illegible] trade in illustrating its utter inefficiency when compared with the National [illegible]. There is the money, cover it or shut up." And Smith did shut up.

PIRACY IN LITERATURE

Who Wrote "Fauntleroy," "Beautiful Snow," Etc?

CASES OF INCREDIBLE AUDACITY

Persons Whose Longing for Notoriety Has Overcome Their Conscientious Scruples—Dickens and Tennyson

NEW YORK, Oct 3.—George Cary Eggleston has got down a few interesting facts apropos of the claim made by Mrs Winthrop to the [illegible] of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

It was a remark of the late Dr Holland that [illegible] Holm stories [illegible] a person or persons will [illegible] [illegible] the editor of the Century [illegible] he drew [illegible] them. He confidently [illegible] that he knew who wrote the [illegible] merely as he knew who wrote his own [illegible] there were forty eligible persons all [illegible] each of whom solemnly [illegible] to Dr Holland that he or she in fact wrote the stories, each having a different tale to tell of the way in which the manuscripts were stolen.

William Cullen Bryant once told the writer that a person who was [illegible] vehemently [illegible] the authorship of that poem and went [illegible] when Bryant declined to surrender [illegible] pretensions in that particular.

The number of persons who wrote "Beautiful Snow" was estimated by the late Richard Grant White at twenty four and everybody remembers how many different persons produced "All Quiet Along the Potomac" and "Rock Me to Sleep."

[illegible] instances are endless, and sometimes very [illegible] peculiar coincidences arise in connection with them. A rural clergyman in New York had the courage upon one occasion to offer a [illegible] of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" to a New York editor for sale and when the editor objected that the work was already widely known as Dickens' the clergyman solemnly pretended that he could not imagine how the author of "Pickwick" could have got at his manuscript which had been locked up for years in his parsonage desk. The editor was unable to aid him with any plausible conjectures.

Some years ago a student in the University of California made up a collection of the best college and magazine poems he could find and among the verses was one of exceptional quality, whose author had been much admired throughout the college world for his remarkable productions. A [illegible] paper critic presently discovered that Alfred Tennyson had shamelessly stolen the poem and published it when the alleged young author was a babe.

THE NEW CHINESE MINISTER

His Address to the President and the Latter's Reply

WASHINGTON, Oct 3.—Tsui Twohyu, the newly appointed Chinese minister to the United States, yesterday presented to the president by Secretary Blaine.

The minister's address was as follows:

Mr President—SIR: I have the honor to deliver to your excellency the letter which my august sovereign, the emperor of China, has addressed to you accrediting me as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States. It becomes my duty to accept this important charge to which I was called, and I assume it with pleasure, feeling a greater degree of confidence that I may successfully accomplish the duties of my mission because of your excellency's well known high sense and generous courtesy. Mr President, it will be my constant aim to maintain and strengthen the amicable relations which now exist between China and the United States. Sir, I beg leave to offer my earnest wishes for your personal happiness, for the success of the government of which you are the distinguished chief, and for the prosperity of the people of the United States.

The president replied: "Mr Minister—It affords me sincere satisfaction to receive from your hands the letter by which your august sovereign, the emperor of China, credits you in the capacity of envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the government of the United States. I am pleased to observe the confidence you feel, and express the hope that in the discharge of the important duties of your mission you may rely upon my co-operation to maintain the existing relations of good will between the two countries. I assure you it shall be my pleasure to second any efforts on your part for their object the accomplishment of this purpose. I offer you in return my desire for the peace, happiness and prosperity for the empire of China and its people under their sovereign's rule. I also add my sincere wish for your health and happiness during your residence at this capital."

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXCURSION

Our Sister American Guests Start On Their Westward Journey.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The delegates to the international American congress were astir early to prepare for the long trip arranged for them by the department of state. They partook of an early breakfast, then made their way to the Pennsylvania railroad station where they were received by Wm. Curtis, special agent of the state department, who is in charge of the excursion. At a quarter past 8 o'clock the train started on the long journey. The first stop will be made at Jersey City at 1 45 P M. Hon. John B Henderson, president pro tem, missed the train, but will join the delegation at West Point this evening.

AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Pan American excursion train reached Jersey City at 3 15 P M, having been delayed by hot boxes. The run was otherwise uneventful. Mr Henderson, chairman of the United States delegates, managed to [illegible] for his colleagues.

At Baltimore, Secretary Proctor occupied a seat in the car Columbus, having decided at the last moment to accompany the party as far as West Point, where he will view the military parades.

There have been some changes in the list of the excursionists. The delegates from the Argentine Republic were absent. Messrs. Estee and Hanson, of the American delegation, who had intended to join the party later on, concluded to embark at Washington. Delegates Pereira, of Brazil, Nouno and Lemontour of Mexico, Gusman of Nicaragua and Andrea, of Venezuela, who were put down as of the party, declined to go at the last moment. It appears that many of the delegates to the congress, presumably unacquainted with the luxurious surroundings and conveniences of the modern American palace car, were fearful of fatigues in store for them during a tour lasting forty days.

NATIONAL BANK LOANS.

President Harrison Redeeming His Pledge to Reduce Them.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—It will be remembered that during the last days of Cleveland's administration the government's loans to the national banks were increased to about $60,000,000. General Harrison during the campaign promised that the amount should be decreased, since it was widely claimed that most of the loans were made to favor politicians and were not in the interests of the people. That promise is being fulfilled. The aggregate has been decreased to about $40,000,000 since March and before congress convenes it will come down to probably $25 000,000. This money is being applied as rapidly as possible to the purchase of outstanding bonds, the extinguishment of the national debt, and the application of the money to the purchase of bonds in open market is so greatly in excess of the reduction of loans to national banks that no fear can possibly be entertained in any quarter that the calling in of the loans will distress or affect the money market. It may affect the volume of operating funds of a few national banks but it can not in the least degree make an impression upon the circulating medium of the country.

THE O. R. & N. LEASE.

Changes Probable in Favor of the Lessee Company

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Tribune is authority for the statement that a special meeting of stockholders of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company is to be held October 17th to make modifications in the terms of the lease to the Oregon Short Line Company, controlled by the Union Pacific railroad. There is no doubt, says this journal, that these changes will be made or that the advantage will be in favor of the lessee company.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Policy of the General Land Office in Homestead Cases Indicated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Commissioner Groff, of the general land office, rendered his first decision to-day. It was the case of Johannes Frederick vs. Axel Hanselin on appeal from the decision of the local land office at Benson, Minn. The decision appealed from holds that Hanselin failed to comply with the letter of the homestead law in that he did not establish an actual residence upon the land within six months after entry, only digging a well and building a foundation. The entry was accordingly canceled. Commissioner Groff overruled this decision and in his review of the case finds that Hanselin, who was a poor man, was getting along as rapidly with the improvement of the land and construction of his house as possible. The commissioner adds that the six months rule is not to be insisted upon where the entry man's good faith toward the government is sufficiently shown or where his acts are not inconsistent with an honest purpose to comply with the law. He sees no bad faith in this case.

The decision is regarded as important as indicating the policy of the general land office with respect to this class of claims.

THE BEHRING SEA SEIZURES

A Member of Parliament Resigns Because No Redress Was Obtained

OTTAWA, Ont. Oct 3.—C. Baker, a prominent conservative, and a follower of Sir John Macdonald, has resigned his seat as representative of British Columbia in the dominion parliament because the Dominion government has failed to induce the British government to take action toward protecting British Columbia sealers from seizure by United States cruisers in Behring sea and to secure indemnity for the owners of vessels which have been confiscated.

Baker, who was at one time an officer in the British navy, has for some time been endeavoring to induce the Dominion government to secure some redress for his constituents who have lost their vessels by seizure in Behring sea.

PITTSBURG, Oct 3.—Boston bunched four hits and the home team three errors in the fifth inning to-day, yielding the former five runs, none of them earned. Batteries—Cleveland, O'Brien and Zimmer; New York, Keefe, Ewing and Brown. Umpire—Lynch.

ASTORIA NEWS.

Accident to the Steamers Idaho and Dolphin—[illegible] Loggers.

Joseph Knutson, charged with assault and battery in [illegible] a woman against her will, was fined $50 and costs.

The steamer Polar Bear, about which some uneasiness has been felt owing to her being overdue, will arrive from Alaska to-day.

As the steamer Dolphin was crossing out Wednesday a heavy wind and sea carried away her masthead and caused other slight damages. She returned to Astoria for repairs and sailed yesterday for Grays Harbor.

J. Kunzie met with a severe accident while working in a logging camp near Cathlamet Tuesday. Mr Kunzie was in close proximity to a workman engaged in barking logs, and a glancing blow of the barker's ax caught Kunzie on the thigh, sinking the entire blade to the bone. It will be some time before he will be able to resume his work.

Messrs. I. S. Finney and Councilman Elbon, of the Clatsop Mill Company, have gone to San Francisco, where they will inspect the most improved box factories and box machinery. It is the intention of the Clatsop Mill Company to build one of the largest box factories on the coast, and they are fitting up the old I. X. L. cannery for that purpose.

The steamer Idaho left for the Sound Wednesday afternoon minus bowsprit and figurehead. She came down from Portland about 11 o'clock and in attempting to make the turn and land at the O. R. & N. dock she failed to slow down sufficient and barged into the dock with terrible force, shoving her nose clean through the wall and into the enclosure. Her bowsprit was riddled to pieces and the eagle figurehead which has spread its wings over the [illegible] for these many years was completely demoralized.

Matt Erickson was dangerously injured in Bentchwarth's logging camp, formerly Ordway's camp, near Oak Point Wednesday. He and some fellow workmen were trying to "jack" a log up at one end when it swayed and fell against Erickson, pinning him between it and an adjacent log and crushing his breast and upper portion of his body in a most shocking manner. He was put aboard the Telephone and taken to Astoria to the hospital. Blood was oozing from his eyes and nose and he was suffering terribly. It is thought he cannot recover.

COME OUT TO TAKE A LOOK

Two Denver Newspaper Men on a Visit to the Pacific Coast.

Last evening Mr C. E. McSheehy, editor and proprietor of the Rocky Mountain Celt, published at Denver, Colo, gave THE OREGONIAN office a pleasant call. He was accompanied by Mr M Duffy, general agent of that paper. Both these gentlemen will visit every point of interest and importance on the Pacific coast. "We have heard so much about this coast, and particularly Oregon," said Mr McSheehy, "that we were determined to come out and see for ourselves. When we go back we can speak from actual personal observation. We are going to visit every point of importance on this coast before returning." Speaking of THE OREGONIAN as a journal of influence and ability, both gentlemen paid it a very high compliment. These gentlemen will probably remain several days in this city before visiting the sound and going south. They may be depended upon to give a good report of this country on their return home.

CAN LIFE BE PROLONGED?

The prolongation of human life, the restoration of decayed functions to their normal activity by electricity, even when suggested as a remote possibility, rouse and hold the attention. When this suggestion is made by a man whose record of achievements has given him a reputation on two continents, and whose statements are always received with respect if not with deference, incredulity forgets to smile, and we listen with the feeling that the path of discovery always runs through apparent impossibilities. No snap judgment avails in this modern age. To say of anything that it can't be done is to exhibit ignorance of what has been done. The age of miracles is not in the past, but in the present and future. We walk in the company of marvels every day, which the science of electricity has recently achieved. Dr Darrin has at any rate given us something serious to think about, and encouraged the hope of new victories over the ills to which flesh is heir by his system of electro magnetic treatment, as the following references show:

Geo H Papenberg, Tualatin, Or.—Deafness ten years, so he could scarcely hear a sound, cured in twenty minutes.

Mrs John McGinnis, Vancouver, W. T.—Paralyzed arm cured sixteen years ago by Dr Darrin while in San Francisco.

Ex Mayor C. H. Hill's son, of Albina, Or.—Cured of an offensive discharge of both ears since five months old.

John B. Dougherty, Roche Harbor, W. T.—Hydrocele entirely cured and removed by one operation of five minutes.

Mr S. A. Wooden's girl, 64 Columbia street, Portland—Nervous debility and malarial fever and discharging ear restored.

Wm Altnow, Drewsey, Grant county, Or.—Catarrhal deafness and ringing in the ears for twenty years perfectly cured.

Mrs S. W. Metzger, Gresham, Or.—Dyspepsia, liver complaint and pain in stomach twenty three years, restored.

Mrs C. Magenson, Merchant's hotel, Portland.—Rheumatism, neuralgia and female troubles cured permanently one year ago.

W. F. Ogle, Seatco, W. T.—Liver and kidney complaint and dyspepsia, also deafness and whole system run down, cured.

William Little, Seattle, W. T.—Pain in his chest of over eight years standing entirely cured by electro-magnetic treatment.

J. W. Zumwalt, Albany, Or. (formerly of Moro, Wasco county, Or.) cured of an aggravated case of rheumatism and spinal complaint.

Drs. Darrin's Place of Business

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, OCT. 4.

THE REDISTRIBUTION OF POLITICAL FORCES.

The elections of last Tuesday established clearly that the republican party is strong enough in Washington and North and South Dakota to assure these three states to the republican electoral vote in the presidential election of 1892, and, judging by the fact that the republican congressman was elected from Montana on Tuesday Montana too is likely to be a republican state by 1892. This result is due to the fact that in the redistribution of political forces that has been going slowly forward during the last ten years of emigration from the East to the West, the republican party has transferred enough of its superfluous strength from New England and the middle West to the trans Mississippi and Missouri region and the Pacific coast, so that by 1892 there will not be a democratic electoral vote between the Mississippi and the Pacific outside the old slave states of Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas. The figures of this astonishing republican increase in the trans-Mississippi states and territories, since the admission of Minnesota in 1858, Oregon in 1859 and Kansas in 1861 are worth reciting. In 1864 Minnesota gave Lincoln 7685 majority, and gave Harrison in 1888 about 38 000 plurality. In Colorado the republican plurality has risen from 2803 in 1880 to 13 207 in 1888. Idaho in 1880 gave 426 republican plurality, in 1888 about 1750. Kansas went republican by 33 833 in 1872 and gave Harrison a plurality of 79,190. Nebraska that gave Grant but 10 541 in 1872, gave Harrison 27 883 plurality in 1888. Nevada that gave a democratic majority of 701 in 1872, gave Harrison 1857 plurality in 1888. Oregon that in 1884 gave Blaine 2256 plurality gave Harrison 6769 in 1888. In Washington the republican majority of 1301 in 1878 rose to 7379 in 1888. Wyoming that was democratic by 1171 in 1882 elected a republican delegate to congress by 2801 majority in 1888. To these may be added California, which despite the anti Chinese cry against Harrison gave him 7087 plurality in 1888. In 1876 California gave Hayes but 2800 majority for president. In 1880 the Morey letter gave the state to the democracy by 102 plurality. In 1884 Blaine, as an early and outspoken advocate of the anti-Chinese legislation, carried California by 13,128 plurality, which does not stand for as much legitimate republican strength as the 7087 plurality for Harrison, given him in face of his denunciation by the democracy as having refused to support the anti Chinese legislation advocated by Blaine. In legitimate, reliable political strength California is to-day a surer republican state than at any time in her previous history.

It is noteworthy that while the republican strength has steadily increased in the trans-Mississippi states and territories it has steadily decreased since 1880, in New England, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. Here are some figures. Connecticut cast 4760 republican plurality in 1872, but 2656 in 1880, and was carried by the democracy in 1884 and 1888. Massachusetts that gave Garfield in 1880 about 53 000 plurality gave Harrison but 32,000 in 1888. New Hampshire that gave Garfield over 4000 plurality in 1880 and Blaine over 4000 in 1884 gave Harrison a plurality of 1272 in 1888. Rhode Island that gave Garfield 7410 plurality in 1880 gave Harrison 4438 in 1888. New York gave Garfield 21,033 plurality in 1880 and Harrison but 13 002 in 1888. The democratic plurality in New Jersey in 1880 was but 2010, but in 1888 it was 7149. Illinois gave Garfield 40,716 plurality, and Harrison but 22 195. Indiana gave Garfield 6341 plurality and Harrison but 2348. Iowa gave Garfield 78,059 plurality and Harrison but 31,711. Michigan gave Garfield 53,890 plurality and Harrison but 22 911. Ohio gave Garfield 34 227 plurality and Harrison but 19,-600. Wisconsin gave Garfield 29,764 and Harrison but 21 321.

During the last ten years the republican strength has been steadily decreasing east of the Mississippi, and steadily increasing in all the states and territories that stretch from the Mississippi to the Pacific, save Iowa. The falling off in the republican strength east of the Mississippi is due to the fact that the foreign immigration that halts at the East or settles in the great cities of the Middle West is naturally of democratic drift and sympathy. It is democratic through the cohesive attraction of ignorance for ignorance; of turbulence for turbulence, of lawlessness for criminality. The immigration that has poured from the far East and Middle West to the far West and the Pacific to hew out a home in a new country represents a class of decent farmers and mechanics, whose intelligence and love of law and order makes them naturally republican. The Irish and Canadian French immigration is gradually increasing the democratic vote in New England, the low, non-enterprising immigrants that stick in New York city swell the democratic vote in the Empire state, and New Jersey, and the same class of non-agricultural immigrant labor, swells the democratic vote every year in the great cities of the middle West. In another ten years it is more than likely that Connecticut will not be the only democratic state in New England; that Indiana and New York will be hopelessly democratic. Under these circumstances the republican party's rising hope for the future will be the rapid increase of population in the republican states between the Mississippi and the Pacific coast and the probability that within ten years Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware will be republican states.

OUR COAST MARINE.

The recent storm on the Atlantic coast demonstrated again the intrepidity, skill and courage that belong to the patrolmen of the beach and the hardy sailors who man the surfboats of the life-saving stations and push out in the face of the tempest to rescue those who are undergoing the horrors of shipwreck. The lives of these men are not those of constant danger, but of constant alertness and expectation. Their dealings are with human life in its direst emergency, and with death, when their efforts are outdone by the combined fury of the wind and waves and the pitiless power of the rocks. Their work begins with the coming of the storm and lasts until the calm succeeds it. There is no service, save, perhaps, that in the army and navy in time of war that calls for greater bravery and self denial than is demanded in this. The loyal service which these men render extends beyond those rescued from death. It belongs to the entire public, whom they stand ready, as occasion may require, to serve. The coast line is alike the property and the care of the entire country. Its safety concerns the great inland states equally with those of the coast, and humanity everywhere is interested in a service that stands pledged to its interests in time of shipwreck, ready to dare all and do all to rescue human life from the "dread sweep of the down streaming seas" and save property from the wrath of the storm.

Until recently the Pacific coast has had few of these life-saving stations, although disaster has many times demonstrated the bitter need of them. Within the past few years, however, the system has been extended more fairly to the more exposed points of the coast. The record of service in the matter of saving life at the mouth of the Columbia river was given in a dispatch from San Francisco a few days ago, wherein Major Blakeney, superintendent of the service, for the Pacific coast district, said that the loss of life at that point had been in two years reduced from 150 to ten or twelve, adding. "There are just as many accidents as ever, but our men rescue the unfortunates from death."

Inured to danger, accustomed to the sea in its stormiest as well as in its more placid moods, these men know no such feeling as that of fear, and reckless of their own lives, they stop at nothing that promises the faintest hope of saving the lives of others.

The appropriations necessary to bring this service up to the fullest possible efficiency should not be governed by a niggardly spirit. It is enough that the men should be poorly paid without having to suffer the additional injustice of being paid grudgingly. The penny wise policy that shaves appropriations for river and harbor improvements down to a limit that permits little advancement in an important work is a display of mistaken economy, but it does not involve anything more serious than considerations of prosperity for the section immediately interested, whereas to scrimp the life saving appropriation is to cripple a service that humanity and economy are alike interested in maintaining to the fullest limit of possible usefulness.

A FORM OF CHARLATANRY

One W J Colville has been lecturing at intervals on "Theosophy" at the Tabernacle in this city since the 9th ult and giving lessons in the "Philosophy of Mental Healing," or "The Power of Mind and Matter to Cure all Manner of Diseases, Moral, Mental or Physical." So far as the "theosophy" preached, we presume that it was identical with the nonsense preached by the famous charlatan, Madame Blavatsky and her dupe Colonel Olcott, under that name for that is what spiritists generally mean by "theosophy" which literally means "the wisdom of God." In the sphere of man's physical constitution the mind doctor seeks to be a theosophist, whose philosophy is defined as follows by Rev Dr Dennison

> There is in man a structure and idea that idea is a mental force, it is the wisdom, the logos, the Christ, it generated the man's physical structure and is still generating it. This wisdom seeks for those who will make themselves susceptible to it, those that are teachable and self forgetting. It makes for righteousness and it makes for health. Disease, relatively to this force, is simply a negation. If one were en rapport with the wisdom he would have such an influx of sanative force that a germ of typhoid fever could not hurt him.

The Buddhist form of theosophy is described as dangerous mysticism married to cabalistic nonsense, and this was the sort cultivated by the Blavatsky, who was exposed in her frauds and charlatanry by the press of Calcutta, who published her correspondence with one of her fellow-mountebanks.

To lecture on "Theosophy" and charge an admission fee of 25 cents is perhaps a legitimate business. If a man chooses to pay 25 cents to listen to a farrago of nonsense we suppose he has the right that every fool may plead to feed himself his fill of folly, but when we pass from talking "theosophy" to giving twelve lessons for $3 in the theory and practice of "Mental Healing," which is to "cure all manner of diseases, moral, mental or physical," it looks to plain people very much like getting money under false pretenses, as an offer to cure all diseases by "mental healing" or any other kind of "healing" is as clear proof of quackery and imposition as would be an offer to raise George Washington from the dead and show him to a Tabernacle full of Portland people for an admission fee of 25 cents a head. All diseases are not curable and the promise to cure all diseases is the promise of an impudent quack made to the credulous and superstitious who are always "meat" for mountebanks and tricksters.

This "Mental Healing," "Faith Cure" or "Christian Science," has in it nothing novel and nothing true save what everybody of intelligence knows and admits, viz that undoubtedly certain superficial functional ailments and what are called disturbances of the nervous system are largely controlled if not cured by the will power. That is, the ailment is often imaginary rather than real, and with a change of mental mood comes relief. Women are strongly attracted by the faith cure because they suffer most from maladies that are fed, if not founded by their imagination, for women are more imaginative, nervous and hysterical, more prone to run from mental exaltation to mental depression and vice versa than robust men. Good and worthy people listen to the so called teachings of "Christian Science," "Mental Healing" or the Faith Cure" without knowing that it is nothing new; nothing but the old lesson of the power of the mind over body, of the imagination over the physical organization. This power never cured an organic disease or any disease of serious consequence, whatever it may do for the nervous, the hypochondriac and the hysterical to change the mood of depression and despair to one of transient hope and content, to soothe or strengthen for the time the nervous or quiet the hysterical. Everybody knows that the manipulation, steaming and massage to which a man submits who takes a Turkish bath alleviates superficial ailments but nobody supposes that a cripple who was lame through the destruction of any important ligament or muscle could be rubbed back into a whole man, because a leg, lame through neuralgia, muscular rheumatism or sciatica, had been helped by manipulations. The faith or mind cure dates back to the early ages of the so called Christian church which taught the possibility of curing diseases by prayer and mystic ceremonies. The Scriptures say

> "If any man is sick among you, let him call for the elders of the church and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord." And the prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord shall raise him up. "And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits to cast them out and heal all manner of disease."

Nevertheless, any professor of this school to-day would make himself liable to indictment for quackery, and the disciples of Professor Colville are not free from danger in many parts of the country.

Here are some facts to the point: Martha Olsen died recently of typhoid fever at the house of a leader of a band of faith-cure believers in Brooklyn, N. Y. After the girl had been sick two weeks, and three days before her death a police surgeon was summoned by the indignant neighbors and left a prescription. The prescription was not put up, and when the doctor was called again the girl was dead. Dr Ford testified that in his opinion, the girl died of neglect. Proper medical remedies and proper nourishment were not obtained for her. On his second visit he found fifteen or sixteen women and one man in the room with the corpse. They told him that all that was necessary in cases of sickness was prayer, and that if he would stay they would pray for him.

The wife of the brother of the dead girl testified that she visited her sister in-law five or six times, and each time urged her to have a physician, but the girl refused to have one called, saying that he could do her no good. When the witness asked her why she did not come to her house, the girl said "It is not Christ's house." Mrs Olsen, the wife of Carl L Olsen, said to her "Jesus made Martha sick, and will take care of her."

The leader of this band of faith cure believers was arrested on a charge of manslaughter for neglecting to provide medicine, call a physician or purchase the medicine finally prescribed and was held in default of $5000 bail. Dr Ford testified that the girl died of neglect. He said "there is no doubt about it. The only thing these people did was to nurse her and perform their hellish incantations over her, waving their hands over her, patting her on the body and praying for her recovery. These people should be taken charge of and a stop put to their outrageous ceremonies." Four or five months ago this Olsen allowed one of his children to die without calling a physician.

Another victim of Christian scientists was Anna McKee who died at Cape Vincent N. Y., on the 22d ult. of gastritis. The only treatment she received was the prayers of Mrs McConnell and Miss [illegible] who thinks that she has been cured by "Christian Science." Miss McKee died in great agony. The doctors declare her life was lost through neglect, and the whole town is indignant over the affair. In England and Continental Europe all such persons whether charlatans or cranks are tried for manslaughter and severely punished.

The assertion is made that bad cooking lies at the foundation of more divorces than any other cause. This may be, but it strikes the average intellect as doubtful, since the graduate of the modern cooking school and the comely lass who learned how to make the bread and pies in her mother's kitchen alike find their knowledge of the culinary art of little avail when the account at the saloon is larger than that at the grocery store. Unfortunately the imagination however lively, cannot supply the ingredients of a hearty meal, a fact which husbands of the class from whom wives seek divorce on the ground of cruelty fail to comprehend when they strike the cook with a beer bottle because the coffee is weak and there are no eggs or butter on the breakfast table. Women are unreasonable creatures, there is no doubt of that, but after all it is scarcely the fair thing to blame them for the lack of an imagination that will supply the trifling details necessary to "good cookery" and a peaceful home, across the threshold of which no shadow of possible divorce ever flits. They were probably "born so" and should be dealt with as leniently as possible by hungry husbands.

An illustration of possibilities under Oregon's assessment laws is stated in the fact that the stock inspector of Lake county found 250 000 sheep feeding upon the succulent grasses of that county, while the assessor was able to find but 30 000. This discrepancy in the actual and assessed number of stock is as common as that between the actual and assessed value of property of all kinds in the state, and long ago ceased to excite surprise. It is in fact, quite the thing to be expected under the workings of a law that seems to have been framed for the purpose of making an honest valuation of property impossible to the average human being, to whom self interest is the first consideration and the payment of taxes is at best but a disagreeable duty to be shirked whenever it is possible to do so without being sold out by the sheriff.

In view of the fact that the great North west will take an active part in the presidential election of 1892 it is quite probable that one Grover Cleveland is now pondering regretfully upon his shortsightedness in signing the omnibus bill. To strain a Byronic metaphor somewhat, he is now probably engaged in ruefully viewing the feathers of his gray goosequill, which winged the shaft that has fatally struck his hopes of a second term, after an interim of four years. The situation offers one ray of consolation. Governor Hill may be the nominee in which case his dear friend and predecessor in the gubernatorial chair of New York will try not to shudder too perceptibly at the lodgment of the fatal arrow.

Young men and boys of various towns up the valley are firmly convinced that the "circus is not as good as it was last year." They have come to this mournful conclusion while searching empty pockets where the cheerful jingle of coin earned in the harvest fields and hop yards of the neighborhood was but lately heard, but where now, alas! is a vast vacuity. The games that are a part of the show looked so innocent and withal so simple that before the boys knew it they had bought an interest in the circus to the extent of their summer's earnings, and now that it has gone they naturally feel a little lonesome and depressed in spirits. Experience of this kind comes high but it seems that the boys have got to have it.

The platforms adopted by the various republican state conventions throughout the United States have been in all instances fully worthy of the party. The New York platform contains in substance the following. It reaffirms the national republican platform of 1888, it emphasizes among other things its approval of these doctrines, protection to American industries and American labor the restoration of the efficiency of the postal service, the purification and elevation of the civil service, the encouragement of popular education and a law taxing collateral inheritances. It differs from democratic declarations of a similar nature in that it does not contain denunciations of the opposing party.

A Polk county paper, referring to a lecture recently delivered in Dallas, upon the subject of "Shams," declares it to have been "all that the name implies." While the lecturer will appreciate the compliment evidently intended, it is not likely that he will give it a conspicuous place in his scrap book or append it to his announcement the next time he visits a strange place for the purpose of delivering this lecture.

BIG ELEVATOR COMPLETED.

Everything Finished and Yesterday Operations Were Commenced.

Description of the Mammoth Structure, and How the Grain Is Manipulated—Perfect in Every Detail.

The grain elevator just completed by the Pacific Coast Elevator Company at Albina was started up yesterday in the presence of Mr F H Peavey of Minneapolis one of the principal owners Mr C J Smith general manager of the O R & N Co British Vice-Consul James Laidlaw and a number of other gentlemen

Descriptions of the huge structure have appeared in these columns as the work progressed so it is only necessary to state here that it has a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels and is thoroughly equipped in every respect with all the latest improvements and is one of the finest and most complete elevators in the United States. Mr Peavey says it is the best ever built by his firm which has built as many elevators as any firm in the country

A train of cars loaded with wheat in bulk had been run into the huge building, and four of these were unloaded at once to show the visitors how this was done. Eight cars can be unloaded at once, and thirty-two carloads of grain can be received and placed in the bins in an hour The cars are placed opposite to the "legs" or machines for raising the grain the doors and inner grain doors are opened and part of the grain pours out into iron tanks below

Two men then go into the car and by means of shovels and scrapers to which are attached ropes worked by the machinery soon throw out the remainder From these tanks the grain is elevated to the top of the building where are sixteen scales of 2000 bushels capacity each for weighing it.

On the ground floor is a row of dustless cleaning machines of [illegible] capacity the dust from which is carried off down a spout into the water

On the river side of the building is a floor elevated above the main floor, on which are scales and every convenience for sacking and weighing wheat, and where 200 sacks can be put up and shipped per minute

A long climb up flight after flight of stairs at the side of a shaft, through which a huge rubber belt runs brings the visitor to a floor just below the eaves and just above the top of the numerous bins which are to hold the grain This is called the spouting floor and all along it are clusters of spouts leading to different bins, while from the ceiling above is suspended a movable spout, by means of which the wheat passing from the scales above can be led to any of the bins On the floor above are more spouts and above that the weighing floor with its long row of sixteen huge scales. From this a ladder reaches to the roof of the cupola, as the high, narrow structure running the whole length of the building is called, and from this at a hight of about 100 feet from the ground can be had a magnificent view of the city harbor and surroundings, and the snow peaks in the distance.

The building is lighted throughout with incandescent lamps and on every floor are water pipes and hose ready for use, and barrels of water standing along the walls at short distances

The elevator is so arranged that grain can be received, cleaned and shipped at the same time This involves considerable extra expense, and this is the only elevator in the country so arranged Mr Brush the superintendent, is a man of experience having had charge of the large Munger and Wheeler elevator at Chicago

The engine room and boiler room are in a brick building just north of the elevator and are as complete in every detail as money and experience can make them Mr Welch, the chief engineer, is from the Santa Fe elevator at Chicago, and thoroughly understands every detail of his business. The boiler room contains a battery of three boilers. The furnace doors are so arranged that by a slight pressure on a lever they fly open of themselves. The steam chests and pipes are covered so as to most effectually prevent the radiation of heat. First there is a layer of asbestos then a dead air space, then a covering of felt and then canvas.

In the engine room there is a handsome 350 horse-power Buckeye engine with a patent indicator and patent oilers at every point where needed. Although started up for the first time yesterday it ran as smoothly and noiselessly as possible There is also a Buckeye engine for running the dynamo to light the building and a Worthington fire pump, connecting with the pipes and hose on the different floors of the building. There is also a watchman's clock connected with electric wires throughout the building which shows how the watchman has made his rounds during the night.

A novice can see, by looking through the whole establishment that no pains or expense has been spared to have everything of the best and most perfect kind On this terminal elevator, and the twenty five country houses completed along the lines of the O R & N Co, the company has expended about $[illegible]0,000

A prominent grain shipper who was present at the opening, said that the building of this elevator was one of the best things inaugurated for this city and that nearly all of the principal shippers now saw it in that light They would now give up buying in the country, and when they wanted a cargo of wheat they could get it at the elevator

The elevator company do not intend to engage in shipping They have not come here to interfere with any one's business, but think the country is growing and there will be soon enough for all and they desire to work harmoniously with all and build up the country With their facilities for handling grain they can do this so much cheaper than could be done by the old style that they can collect the grain here and sell it to the shipper cheaper than he could get it here, and after paying the farmer as much or more for it than the shipper, would still make a profit.

Portland can boast the first real grain elevator and system of elevators on the coast, and these will materially aid in helping her to maintain her supremacy

AT PORTLAND'S THEATERS.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy"—Patti Rosa Next—At the Musee—Other Attractions

Another crowded house greeted the performance at New Park theater by the Little Lord Fauntleroy Company A more delighted and enthusiastic audience was seldom seen.

This afternoon a matinee performance will be given, which no doubt will bring out a very large crowd.

To-night will positively be the last performance of the company in Portland as the members leave to-morrow for San Francisco There will be a novelty in this evening's cast, Wallie Eddinger and Flossie Ethyl have created a most favorable impression in Portland and both have hosts of admirers. There have been so many requests made to the manager of the company, by some that Flossie may play Friday evening, by others that Wallie may be seen just one more evening that a plan to please all has been hit upon Wallie Eddinger will play the Little Lord Fauntleroy in the first act and during the first half of the second act and Flossie Ethyl will play the second half of the second act.

CHARMING PATTI ROSA.

Next Monday evening Patti Rosa, the charming little comedienne will commence a five night engagement at the New Park theatre Speaking of this most engaging artist the London Figaro says

Miss Rosa succeeds entirely on her own merits She compels the attention of her audiences and carries them away with her Her songs and dances were encored again and again and never have the walls of this, up till now unfortunate little theater resounded with so much genuine applause, as that which greeted the little American lady's untiring efforts.

Of one song in particular a composition of Patti Rosa's own having the refrain of 'Hannah! Hannah! Oh do come out to night!' The audience never seemed to tire and it was demanded and redemanded until the singer must have been very tired with the prolonged exertion

CORDRAY'S MUSEE THEATER.

The attendance at last night's production of "The Convict's Daughter" in which the accomplished actress Miss Clyde Harron plays the heroine was fully as large as usual. The play is a very interesting one and will only be produced during the present week The Musee is also receiving a great deal of attention

THE STANDARD

The bill at this house this week is a very clever one Some of the best and highest priced talent on the coast is playing at this house. As usual the house is well filled nightly

WALLIE EDDINGER.

How He Came To Be an Actor—Some Personal Characteristics of the Little Lord

So much has been said this week, so many questions asked, so many expressions of opinion heard about Wallie Eddinger, the greatest of all the Little Lord Fauntleroys, that a few lines about him, his personality his ways his doings and his sayings will not be out of place

Wallie was born in Albany, N Y, and is now in his 9th year His becoming an actor was a matter of the merest chance Wallie's father was a member of the Charles Ellis 'Caspar the Yodler' Company, when one night he took Wallie to the theater with him. Ellis was so pleased with the boy's appearance that he offered him an engagement simply to appear on the stage A few nights later he was given a child's part in the play and made a hit. When the Fauntleroy fever broke out and Fauntleroys were in demand, the boy was taught the part and memorised his lines and much of the business in eleven days. Then he was taken to Mr French, who controls the play and after a five minute's interview he was engaged and earning his own living at a phenomenal salary when he was only 7 years old

The first time Mrs. Burnett saw Wallie play Cedric Errol (Lord Fauntleroy) she was affected to tears, kissed the child over and over again, and told him she had just such a little fellow in her mind when she wrote the book Wallie's acting of the part is not acting at all, he is simply Cedric Errol and little Lord Fauntleroy is just Wallie Eddinger No two identities could be more analogous, none more closely united. Off the stage he is the same as on it the same lovable little fellow, sturdy, manly, proud to defiance, but tractable and obedient. Ask him if he likes acting and he will tell you, "Oh, I love it, and I have been in a lot of plays In Caspar the Yodler in 'Among the Pines' in Phillip Herne and this is my second season in Fauntleroy I guess I do like acting!

A peculiarity of Wallie's perhaps a mannerism, is as noticeable in him off as on the stage It is the slow pensive reflective style of his conversation which is one of his greatest charms as the little nobleman What makes him beloved by everybody with whom he comes in contact is the utter absence of affectation from his nature He loves everybody he meets, and is as sympathetic with a beggar child as with some little society belle or belle wh[illegible] he chances to be He cannot pass a clean looking dog without stopping to pat it a pussy cat without caressing it or a coop of chickens on the sidewalk without stopping to stare his pea[illegible] his fruit or his candies with them He is truthful, courageous and manly to a degree

Once while in Seattle a lady asked him to take a little walk with her In a little while came the quaintest of answers, "Papa told me to go to him immediately after supper and I so [illegible] me because I went down town without telling him" Needless to say he was begged off Wallie has no more devoted admirers than the members of the Fauntleroy company whose adopted child he is and for each and every one of whom he has a pet name His father is always with him and he says "I'm only one thing is Wallie obstinate and arbitrary I must tell him a story while dressing him for his part, and it must be a new story every time

FORGER CLINTON GETS TWO YEARS

R Clinton the convicted forger argued a motion for a new trial in the criminal court yesterday morning It was a very poor effort He denied having confessed his guilt to the jury when the case was on trial but the court told him point blank that he did confess Clinton was inclined to be insolent and the court had to sit down on him as the saying goes. When he had finished Judge Stearns sent him up for two years

DEATH OF MISS ELLA M SMITH.

This Estimable Lady Passes Away—A Fitting Tribute to Her Worth

The announcement made elsewhere of the death of this estimable lady will be to many a surprise though for some months she has been an invalid, and for many weeks has not left her home Her life has been a quiet, unobtrusive one and her character although in some respects an open book, was one that few people thoroughly understood and appreciated Even to her nearest friends she was usually reserved but all the while there has been an undercurrent in which nobility of purpose great dignity of will and heart joined to breadth of experience, could be constantly discerned

Born in New England and having her early home and education among the frugal hard working people of a seafaring town she had many of the traits that characterize such people she inherited habits of economy high integrity a keen sense of justice independence of judgment and these traits were joined with a sensibility and sympathy which were shown in simple expressions of speech and many deeds of kindness It will now be known since her life on earth is ended that she held herself and possessions as a trust that emotions of humanity and true religion were the real basis of her life, and had her health and strength been spared her benefactions would have extended with her ability and the underlying unselfish motives of her character would have become conspicuously known

Her friends her church and this whole community have cause to commemorate her simple womanhood her patience in suffering, her modest self respecting worth, her care for the unfortunate and for the welfare of society, and the courage with which when she came to die, she has fulfilled the last trusts of her station and rendered an account of her stewardship Her name will be held in grateful memory by the living and the unborn for whom she has verified the word "Inasmuch as ye have done it to the least of these, my brethren ye have done it unto me" T L E.

A WILD STEER

Albina does not very often have a sensation but when it does it is a startling one A few days ago a wild steer came tearing down Goldsmith street and up to Russell on a rampage, followed by a rider on horseback who yelled at the top of his voice "Look out! Run for your lives" A glance was sufficient and those who could not jump a fence or rush into some open door near by climbed the electric poles for dear life The excitement was intense but brief as the infuriated steer ran into Lacy's butcher shop and began to pitch things around in a lively manner This did not however prove satisfactory to his steership and he made a dash for the Lacy brothers and others who stood behind the counter and had not been able to get out before the steer came in too far The floor was slippery with saw dust and fortunately the animal fell and before it could regain its feet Lacey with great presence of mind seized a cleaver and stabbed it in the back of the neck until the animal was killed It was then hauled out on the sidewalk for the owners. [illegible]dorf and his men were driving a band of cattle from [illegible] dock across the iron bridge to East Portland In some manner this steer became separated from the band and after chasing it for some time to get it across the bridge it finally reached the Albina ferry on the West side Here it attempted to board the ferry but was driven off when it plunged into the river and swam across and landed near the Shaver dock The owners took away their beef thankful no doubt that no greater damage had been done

BUSY LITTLE FINGERS

The Merry Workers held their concert Wednesday evening at the Presbyterian church which was well filled with the parents and friends of the society The programme which consisted of music and recitations was carried out satisfactorily by each participant The receipts of the evening were about $20 The Merry Workers are a missionary band composed of Sunday school children who meet every Saturday and under the supervision of Miss Ella Arnberg sew and do all kinds of fancy work With their united efforts they have donated sums for various appropriate uses. They gave $10 towards the church bell and $10 towards the organ This society will give a fair during the holidays, and then all can see how much busy little fingers can accomplish

GENUINE OLD PERSIMMONS

They Can Be Cultivated Here With Success—Some Very Excellent Specimens

A number of real old Missouri persimmons, the kind that the longest pole knocks when ripe and which if eaten green pucker up a person's mouth and skew it round to the back of his head were left at THE OREGONIAN office yesterday, by Mr Ben Griffith of Woodland Cowlitz county, Wn

The trees on which these persimmons grew were raised from seeds sent out from Missouri, and planted over twenty years ago on Mr Griffith's farm on Lewis river The trees are now from twenty to thirty feet high, very thrifty, and have grown up without care or cultivation The trees this year produced about thirty bushels of persimmons, which are about the size of a greengage plum, of a dark yellow color, resembling very much the Japanese persimmons grown by B G Whitehouse but only about a quarter as large

The persimmon is not equal to a good peach or apricot plum but compares very well with the apricot. Those left by Mr Griffith were over ripe and were neither sweet or sour but had a peculiar taste not at all unpleasant but there is nothing about the persimmon which would make it sought after where prunes plums and peaches are plentiful The persimmon have from one to three or four seeds in them instead of a pit like a plum The trees grow well here and might be raised as a curiosity When there are plenty of persimmon trees the opossum can be cultivated here and then the yaller dog can be utilized If everybody would plant seeds of trees from his old state it would be a good thing and we would soon have a great variety of trees here The chestnut and black and English walnut do well here and why not the butternut hickory and beech

Some seeds of the pawpaw were given out here a few years since and some [illegible] but nothing has been heard from them It may be that hickory trees beech and butternut trees are growing in this state but it is doubtful What Oregon needs is such a character as wandered through the Western early days planting seeds of fruit trees If ever a favorable place in advance of [illegible] Appleseed Johnny Chapman who [illegible] [illegible] Oregon while [illegible] [illegible] will the finest timber lumber has a poor assortment of deciduous trees certainly nothing to compare the [illegible] beech birch and maple forests [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] could be taken out on [illegible] [illegible]

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING.

The Sales for the Nine Months Just Ended Aggregate $10,736,064 68.

The Market Has a Healthy Tone—Building Permits Issued Since January 1 to Date Amount to Over $1,700,000

The people who had been rusticating in the mountains and at the seashore during the hot spell returned to the city last month and the real estate market resumed the activity which has characterized it this year Mixed weather was had during the month the first week was bright and warm then there was rain followed by a week of fine weather after which came three very hot days The remainder of the month was cool and rainy

The sales for the month were larger than those of the same month of any previous year and were nearly three times those of September 1888 The market continues to have a good tone The completion of the several cable and steam and electric motor lines under way or proposed will put several large tracts on the market

Work on the buildings and residences under construction was pushed and many of them are nearing completion During the month building permits aggregating $1[illegible]140 were granted, making the total for the year to date $1 [illegible]

LA GRANDE'S IMPROVEMENT.

The Central Supply Point of a Vast Timbered Country.

Lumber Contracts Embracing Vast Capital Employment of Hundreds of Men—Fine Stock Bred in the Vicinity—General News Notes.

LA GRANDE Oct 1 1889

In last week's letter to THE OREGONIAN from this place, an outline was given of the vast extent of rich agricultural country embracing the best farming areas of two counties of which La Grande is the natural center and supply point This is but a small part of the wealth producing territory tributary to La Grande On the west there are hundreds of timber covered Blue mountains embracing hundreds of square miles of forests and grazing lands that all depend on La Grande as the center of supplies An inconsiderable part of the timber lands of the Blue mountains has been touched and it is estimated that within easy access of Grand Ronde river alone there is 800 000 000 feet of lumber standing in the trees and this scope of country is hardly a tenth part of the timber regions that are easily accessible from and tributary to La Grande

At the present time there are twenty sawmills in operation in the Blue mountains near La Grande and the product of these mills finds a ready market along the Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific railways. One firm alone has been at work the past season on a contract for 700 000 railroad ties This firm is supplied with provisions and other necessaries consumed by its army of laborers from La Grande.

The big sawmill company has received its last piece of machinery and will start up next week It has contracted for the immediate delivery of 20 000 000 feet of saw logs, and will employ a working force of 250 hands Every lumbering firm in the mountains secures the amount of supplies from La Grande and the money in circulation disbursed in the operation of the lumber forms a very prominent part in La Grande's prosperous business thrift and prosperity The wealth producing capacity of the Blue mountains is not confined to the production of lumber

There are thousands of acres of grazing lands that maintain herds of stock in the summer months and the profits of this industry has an important part in the upbuilding of a prosperous community The mineral regions south of this county depend in a large measure on Grand Ronde for provisions which always insures a market for surplus vegetables and fruits and thousands of barrels of flour

Taking it all in all it would be a difficult matter to find a region of country that has the same variety and extent of resources and advantages that may be found in the 5000 square miles of territory tributary to La Grande The effect of the development of these resources is plainly visible on all sides but in nothing is the wonderful advancement of the country more manifest than in the rapid growth of La Grande Without going into details it is safe to assert that La Grande will fully keep up her record of improvements inaugurated last year when the town made the greatest proportional advancement of any town in Oregon

Mayor DeLashmutt's phenomenal young trotter Lemont that recently broke the 3-year old trotting record of the Northwest is a Grand Ronde production and was foaled on the farm of D A McAlister three miles from La Grande Lemont the sire of Blonde was brought from Kentucky ten years ago and is still owned by Mr McAlister who owns a fine stable of trotters According to the performance of the young 3-year old Lemont makes the sire Lemont and his colts standard bred animals which is a source of great satisfaction to Mr McAlister who has been an industrious laborer in the promotion of thoroughbred stock

Grand Ronde valley is noted for its splendid grades of horses and especially that class of animals which is capable of speed Several dealers have found it a profitable business to ship Grand Ronde buggy teams to the East and in nearly all cases realize a handsome price Many of the fashionable driving places in Eastern cities are graced with elegant equipages drawn by Grand Ronde bred horses

A meeting of the board of trustees of the Blue Mountain university was held to-day and a new board of trustees consisting of twenty four members was elected The new board is composed of representative citizens and has been approved by the M E conference under whose auspices the institution has been managed A proposition is now under consideration which was made by the conference to the La Grande Board of Trade The essential terms of the proposition are that the Board of Trade acting for the citizens of La Grande is to provide means of furnishing and beautifying the buildings and grounds and the conference is to expend about an equal amount in the building of a boarding house and president's home and provide a suitable faculty in time for the opening of school by next fall Each party to the contract is to enter into a sufficient bond for the faithful performance of the conditions imposed The public sentiment of the community is decidedly in favor of placing the institution in running order and no doubt the terms indicated above will be agreed upon

Great excitement is anticipated in La Grande next Saturday the occasion being the opening day of sale for lots in Wisdom's addition to La Grande From present indications it is probable that every lot will be sold

The new Methodist church building erected at an expense of $4500 was dedicated by Bishop Bowman last Sunday

The La Grande public school building is filled from cellar to garret At a recent meeting of the school board it was decided that an addition to the force of instructors be added and other necessary means provided to accommodate the largely increasing enrollment

The [illegible] new steam printing outfit was put in operation this week Work will soon be commenced on a new brick office building

The hop house of A W Rynearson near La Grande was destroyed by fire a few days ago a considerable quantity of hops also being destroyed

Malarial disorders as often attack residents of large cities as of the country Ayer's Ague Cure is warranted a safe and certain specific

JOTTINGS FROM THE EAST SIDE.

Fifty More Lights—Machine Shops—The Foundation—He Waived—Robbery—Band Playing, Etc.

Mr. H. A. Hogue will in a short time send for another dynamo so as to supply the fifty additional electric lights ordered by the common council. The new dynamo will be connected with the one now in operation, and a powerful electrical current will be the result. Additional strength and brilliancy will be given the lights throughout the city by the combination. New wires and poles will be required only when the additional lights are not placed on streets where wires are not already stretched. Mr. Hogue proposes that the council may use the poles on which to place wires for an electric fire alarm system, and the same man who is employed to keep the electric lights in order may look after the fire alarm system. This makes it possible for the city, with its limited means, to have the advantages of a fire alarm system. The offer is certainly worth considering.

MOTOR TAKEN TO ALBINA.

Yesterday the small steam motor of the Willamette Bridge Railway Company was taken to Albina to be used to facilitate construction on the electric lines. Five flat cars were also taken to Albina for the same purpose. The motor and flat cars were switched on the Fifth street line and taken to Holladay avenue. The motor had a hard struggle to push the flat cars to the avenue as the grade is heavy and the track impeded with mud. At many places the motor was unable to move the cars, and then the large force of men would push. In this way the train reached the avenue.

The motor and the flatcars together must weigh fully twelve tons, but this weight passed over Fifth-street bridge without having any effect on it. It was demonstrated that this bridge is not so flimsy a structure as it is supposed to be. In ordinary business it is improbable that the bridge will ever be subjected to so great a weight again.

ROBBERY IN SMITH'S ADDITION.

Mr. Adam McNamee, an expressman, who resides in Smith's addition near the car shops, reported yesterday that while he was absent in Portland, on Tuesday, that his house was entered and robbed. Entrance was effected through a window. Two trunks were broken open, and $1000 in bank certificates were taken and several other articles. The house is some distance from other dwellings, and the burglar or burglars proceeded without molestation.

WAIVED EXAMINATION.

Marshal Morgan arrested a Chinaman at the car shops for assaulting a child at that place, and the fellow was arraigned yesterday morning in Mayo's court. He waived examination, and was bound over to answer before the grand jury. This is not the first time complaints of this sort have been made of this Chinaman, but he has been caught at last, and as the evidence against him is conclusive, he will receive the punishment he richly deserves.

NEW SHOPS.

The Portland & Vancouver Railroad Company will have their machine and repair shops at Woodlawn in the near future. A large amount of lumber is being shipped out there for the buildings, and for some cottages. This will take all the repairs on that line out of the city.

BUILDING THE FOUNDATION.

Excavations for the basement of Judge Bellinger's new residence on Holladay avenue have been finished, and work on the walls of the same has been commenced. There are great piles of stone for the foundation surrounding the site of the building.

THAT BAND ORDINANCE.

It has been stated that the city charter grants the council no authority to forbid the playing of bands on the streets, but can regulate them. This is a mistake; the council can "regulate and prevent the playing of bands on the streets."

The Lady Was Away.

Time.

"I'd like to exchange this yard of ribbon; it is soiled in one place," said Mrs. Shoppingley to one of the clerks at Silk & Saltin's.

"I'm not the lady you bought it of" replied the sales duchess in attendance, "I've just returned from my season in the country, and some other lady must have sold it to you. Here, Maggie; did you sell this person a yard of orange ribbon? No. Well, see which of the ladies in our department did sell it, then."

IDEAL BROILING.

Broiling can be done in the oven of the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door, more perfectly than over the live coals.

Lay the steak, chops, ham or fish on a wire broiler or meat rack, placing it in an ordinary bake pan to catch the drippings.

Allow it to remain in the oven with the door closed 15 or 20 minutes. No turning is required. At the end of this time it will be found nicely cooked ready to serve. THIS IS THE IDEAL WAY TO BROIL MEATS.

There is no taint of coal-gas or smoke, and the meats are more tender and better in flavor than those broiled over the coals. The convenience of broiling in the oven will be appreciated by every house-keeper, and adds another to the many reasons why the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door should be preferred to all others now in the market.

YESTERDAY AT THE FAIR.

Excellent Music and Another Large Attendance.

To-Day's Classical Musical Programme—Individual Mention of Some of the Most Meritorious and Attractive Exhibits.

The attendance at the Exposition both day and evening yesterday was good. The exhibits were greatly admired and the machinery worked smoother than ever

The musical programme last night was, as usual, an excellent one although the numbers in the first part, with the exception of the selections from "Ernani," were for the most part unfamiliar to a Portland audience.

In place of the contralto solo underlined for Madame Casati the audience were regaled with a trio from "Atteta," in which the Madame and Signors Bolli and Pesci displayed some exquisite vocalization which called forth one of the most enthusiastic encores of the season It is needless perhaps to say that the recall was gracefully responded to.

Part second was a felicitous ensemble of popular and well known selections drawn from the "Merry Wives of Windsor," "Boccacio," etc Signor Pesci sang the well known "Non e ver" with customary excellence

Liberati's cornet solo maintained in every respect his usual high standard of excellence.

The programme was concluded with the presentation of "The Awakening of the Lion," given by special request

The lovers of classical music will do well to remember that this Friday) evening is set apart for the presentation of selections from the acknowledged masters in the art of musical composition A rare and what possibly may not be another so favorable an opportunity to hear a true interpretation of the works of the great masters is thus afforded.

TO-NIGHT'S PROGRAMME.

Overture—"Egdmont"	Beethoven
Traumerei	Schumann
Les Preludes	Liszt
PART SECOND.
Andante—From Symphony No 6	Haydn
Cornet Solo "Swan Song," from Lohengrin Wagner Sig Liberati.
Grand Symphony No. 1	Beethoven

THE CENTER OF ATTRACTION

The finest piece of machinery in the entire exposition is the Chandler & Taylor self-contained stationary engine in the exhibit of Staver & Walker This engine is a perfect marvel of mechanical art, and the finest finished piece of workmanship ever seen on the Pacific coast The working parts are all of highly polished steel while the main frame is finished in enamel This engine is the center of attraction in machinery hall, and hundreds stop nightly to note its noiseless and perfect operation. It is run by belt from the main shaft in machinery hall and has the cylinder head and side of steam chest removed, so that all the working parts can be plainly seen Its simplicity commends it to all engineers, and thousands since the exposition commenced, have expressed themselves in the highest terms regarding the ease and perfect working of this piece of machinery It may not be out of place to mention, in this connection, that there are hundreds of the Chandler & Taylor engines in use throughout the Northwest Messrs. Staver & Walker having sold more of these engines the past season than have been sold of any other manufacture They are in use to-day in all the principal brickyards sawmills and other manufacturing enterprises in Oregon and Washington, and all users pronounce this engine as being the easiest handled and most perfect working engine they have ever seen run.

The exhibit of Staver & Walker also includes the Chandler & Taylor sawmills, and a full line of shingle machinery, steam pumps rubber and leather belting machine oils, brick and tile machinery, and machinery and supplies of every description, for which the house is the headquarters on the Pacific coast

PORTLAND MADE MATCHES.

One of the exhibits of the fair that is of no little significance as tending to show the rapid development of the industrial pursuits of Portland and the entire Northwest is that of Messrs. Walker & Dana, whose large factory, the only one on the coast north of San Francisco, is located at the northeast corner of East Park and A streets in this city The display made by this firm includes samples of the wood in the crude state matted and split ready for the application of the match material. In the showcase of the exhibit are seen a number of the largest blocks of matches as they appear previous to being cut into the smaller blocks of 100 each that at once attract the attention of all passers-by In the mention of this display it is only proper to state that Messrs Walker & Dana manufacture a match that in cheapness and superiority can not be equaled, certainly not excelled in the world. These matches are made with a special regard to the humidity of this climate and so perfect has the match become now manufactured by this firm that any bunch of matches turned out by them can be soaked in water for a considerable length of time and taken out in serviceable condition. It can be further stated here that this firm has no connection whatever with their predecessors in business Wm. Bond & Co, and that the match now manufactured by the former for Messrs Walker & Dana, bears not the least resemblance to Bond's matches in either appearance or its action in striking In addition to the call for the encouragement and support of every home industry established in this city there is the claim advanced on the part of the matches turned out by this firm that they are by far the best in the market, and the Standard matches should to-day be used in every household in the Northwest

THE ROSENTINE TEMPLE

Perhaps nine out of ten persons who have made the rounds of the big building have propounded the query "What is the significance of that magnificent temple located in the central portion of the main floor of the east wing? This is one of the great features of the fair and the readers of THE OREGONIAN will doubtless be pleased to learn that a full description of this rich and costly piece of work will appear in next Sunday's issue

SADDLES AND HARNESS.

Among the most noticeable exhibits at the fair is that of John Clark the well known dealer in harness and saddlery Mr Clark is both a manufacturer and direct importer of fine harness and saddlery, and his exhibit is a fair illustration of what may be seen in his place of business, at No 106 Front street There will be an entire change in this display in a few days and several unique novelties in saddlery will be shown

FREE ADMISSION TO EVERYBODY

It will perhaps be welcome news to a great many to learn that for a short time Professor G L. East man who makes the most creditable exhibit of photographs at the fair—the big star near the main entrance that is admired by everybody—has decided to present to everybody having enameled photographs taken at either of his four large galleries here, a ticket entitling the bearer to admission to the fair building.

THE SINGER SEWING MACHINE

In reviewing the many elaborate exhibits at the fair it is found that among the most important of the manufacturing companies conspicuous for the absence of any display, is the Singer Sewing Machine Company Perhaps there is no sewing machine in the market to-day which has such a world wide renown as the Singer The name is a household word in every civilized community under the sun and it is a curious fact that the Singer sewing machine seems in a certain way to mark the direction and the progress of civilization

The questions are often asked "How is it that the Singer stands pre-eminently above all competitors?" and "Why is it so generally conceded that this machine is the best in the market? The causes are many and various but perhaps the one thing to which more than all else may be attributed the fame of this machine, is the fact that purchasers get value received for their money in every instance The Singer gives universal satisfaction

NO END OF VISITORS

The Albatross Thronged With Sightseers Yesterday—The Gentlemanly Crew

The crew of the government steamer Albatross have already received mention for their gentlemanly deportment. They are without doubt the finest vessel's crew that have ever visited this city

In numbers they are sufficient and in their duties they are proficient. Every one who visits the steamer is sure of receiving courteous attention, and any piece of information wished is promptly and cheerfully given by the hardy mariners, who know the workings and use of every appliance and instrument and the name of the contents of every case and jar on the vessel.

Yesterday an unusually large crowd visited the steamer, and at times the laboratory was so crowded that it was with difficulty the visitors moved around. None however were allowed to depart without having seen and had explained everything by the sailors, who patiently went over and over the same ground time and time again with the different visitors the greater number of whom were ladies. This fact alone should be a guarantee that no few questions were asked, as a dry goods salesman would express it

One thing the reporter noticed that does not reflect credit on the men that is some of them, who visited the steamer yesterday. The ones referred to are the tobacco chewers The decks of the steamer are kept scrupulously clean and those who are in the habit of rolling a "quid" of the weed in their mouths, should discard it before boarding the steamer When so much pains are taken to keep the decks clean it is very ungrateful of the men to unnecessarily soil them

MRS. SCOTT-SIDDONS'S RECITALS.

An Intelligent Audience Greeted the Talented Dramatic Reader at the Tabernacle Last Night.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons, the celebrated dramatic reader opened her recent engagement in Portland yesterday evening, having been here eleven years ago. Her readings were given at the Tabernacle, where she was greeted by an intelligent audience of about 400 people Perhaps the audience was distinctly literary for where but few were drawn there in anticipation of simple amusement the majority went to hear her because imbued with literary tastes, that enabled them to derive real pleasure from intelligent dramatic readings.

Mrs. Siddons initial bow was greeted by enthusiastic applause and after she had given two or three selections, the audience were convinced that she had lost none of the wonderful elocutionary powers with which she has interested and entertained the many thousands throughout her eventful career Her voice has lost none of its resonance or mobility Her conception of character is intelligent, and she still retains her remarkable power of portraying passion with true dramatic force Her voice is as melodious as the murmuring brook.

In justice to Mrs. Siddons it may be necessary to state that she was laboring under difficulties in giving her readings last night She had a severe cold that somewhat interfered with her elocutionary efforts especially in the lighter selections. Her portrayal of pathos never was better

The talented artist was attired in a train of rich moire white satin over a skirt of thick corded silk elegantly embroidered with mother of pearl incandescent beads and various colored jewel The corsage was also of white satin and similarly trimmed On the right arm she wore a massive gold bracelet studded with diamonds and rubies a gift from her majesty Queen Victoria. This costume at the time it was sent to America was the costliest evening dress of the season in Paris

The readings were opened with a scene from "Much Ado About Nothing

It is always difficult to give dialogues from Shakespearean dramas, but Mrs Siddons did exceptionally well considering the fact that her cold interfered somewhat with her annunciation

"The Lady Clare," one of Tennyson's most beautiful poems was recited with much feeling, and "A Senator Entangled" from J De Mille, was equally as well given

The character of the coquettish Italian countess who entangled the cold hearted senator, was acted to perfection.

The sleep walking scene of Lady Macbeth closed the first part of the programme and in this Mrs. Siddons was at her best. Her hearers sat spellbound and not a sound stirred the air

The second part of the programme consisted of a selection from Dickens's David Copperfield, giving conversations between the hero and Dora his sweetheart and subsequently his wife a chapter from Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad" giving the experiences of the party of Americans with their native guides, at Geneva and Rome a pathetic poem by Rev Frederick Langbridge entitled Sent Back by the Angels," and recited by Mrs Siddons in Portland for the first time and a comic sketch by L. Moreley, entitled Love in a Balloon"

All of the selections were artistically recited and each elicited the hearty applause of the appreciative audience. Mrs. Siddons's gesticulations are graceful and appropriate and she really combines the arts of reading and acting

Arrangements are being made to have Mrs. Siddons give an entertainment at the Tabernacle Saturday afternoon for the benefit of those who are not able to hear her in the evening.

HAS NOT FORGOTTEN OREGON

A Former Resident, Though Long Absent, Looks Forward With Pleasure to Visiting Portland

Those who have once lived for any length of time in Oregon, never forget our beautiful scenery and lovely climate and heart and mind turn lovingly and longingly toward Oregon, no matter what distance or length of time separates them from our state. Mr W S Cameron formerly connected with THE OREGONIAN but for the past eight or ten years, on the editorial staff of the Mercury of Leeds England, writes to a friend in this city, as follows

"I found at the office on returning from my holiday trip a copy of THE OREGONIAN Enclosed in its pages was a sort of panoramic view of the Willamette valley from Portland to away beyond Albany and although it may seem a ridiculous thing to say I must tell you that there came into my nostrils as I looked at it, the autumn fragrance from the woods that stole with such subtle charm on my senses what time I used to make those railway rides, in the long ago to and from Salem You may be sure that when fancy gets the length of recalling the very scent of a place it must have a strong mental impression as a foundation, and indeed much more than the balsam of pine and fir, was borne in upon me by that specimen of Portland lithography

The whole valley lay revealed not in black and white and indistinct lines introduced to conceal the failure of the artist to follow where nature could have led him but it was all there to me—the flowing stream the radiant color of the shrubbery the deep green of the woods the chatter of the jay birds the gambol of chipmunks the crisp music of grasshoppers in the dry air and Hood rising over all pure and bright into the azure. Oh! I have not forgot to dream about Oregon It will be the happiest holiday I have known when in the good time coming, I book myself right through to your city beside the Willamette."

PORTLAND'S LABOR MARKET

Members of the Different Unions Have No Grievances

The Federated Trades Assembly Report 3000 Members, and All Kept Busy—A Splendid Outlook

The Federated Trades Assembly of Portland met in regular session Wednesday evening and was called to order by Vice President Ready, in the absence of President O Brien

Officers present Secretaries Bombarger and Hart, Vice President Ready and Treasurer Hiland

B C Faling chairman of the executive board stated that the differences existing between the Bakers union and the German bakery had all been settled by the board the matter having been left to it by the parties concerned

There are in this city a little over 3000 members of the various labor organizations and the number is growing every week. A preference is shown to union men with but few exceptions.

Mr Frost's report in regard to the annual ball, and the assembly voted that the ball be given the fore part of November The committee was given full power to act and complete arrangements.

A warm discussion arose on the question of fining absentees. Delegate Faling opposed fining while Delegates Bartlett and Hiland took the opposite view

All the delegates report that work is more plentiful and that the prospects for the future are better than ever before known in the history of Portland Any man who is able to work can find employment at living wages It is thought that there will be at least one third more men employed next year than there has been during the year that is drawing to a close

Mr Frost stated that stonecutters were all at work and state of trade good

Mr Hiland stated that work is good with the tailors and no complaints are heard

B C Faling of the carpenter's union reported plenty of work in the city

The delegate from the printer's union stated that their great difficulty is with apprentices but that all their men were at work

Delegate Ready from the iron moulders union, reported work good

In regard to the open meeting to be held by the federation on the evening of the fifth Tuesday of this month, it was ordered that all trades unions in the city be invited to attend

A communication was read from the plumbers' union, setting forth their grievances and upon motion of Delegate Hart of the cigarmakers the sympathy of this federation was extended to the members of that union

Delegate Tozier who was requested to secure a copy of the decision of Judge Deady that created such a stir among the members of the Coast Seamen's Union and Federated Trades Assembly of San Francisco stated that the matter had been acted upon by the trades unions of San Francisco and that Hon W W Morrow representative in congress from California had appeared before that federation in that city and denounced the portion of Judge Deady's decision wherein it made mention of the Seamen's Union and promised to use his influence to have that portion stricken out. The delegate felt that the created was not greater than the creator and that they would let the matter rest in the hands of Congressman Morrow

After numerous suggestions under the head of good and welfare of the order the assembly adjourned.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc, raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof H A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.
